Gambling Never Pays
Providence Provides
We Talk of Drink
G. W. Hill Advertises

—By Arthur Brisbane—

CHARLES H. WATERS, his savings gone, killed his wife, his daughter and himself.

The money went in stock gambling.

Bootleg whiskey causes some suicides, many murders.

Leave stock gambling and bootlegging alone and you will be able to celebrate each 4th of July cheerfully.

The kindness of Providence supplies us with things when we need them. The ravens fed Elijah.

After the Napoleonic wars Europe, heavily in debt, faced long poverty.

Then came steam power, debts were paid, prosperity was great.

Kings and nobles in steel armor enjoyed leading miserable peasants to war. The latter were left dead, the nobles in their armor rode back. Then gunpowder and bullets went through the armor, nobles and kings went home, wars became less frequent.

The automobile made gigantic supplies of gasoline necessary. The country yields so much oil the oil men don't know what to do with it.

Finally, in flying, clouds and fogs, out of sight of land, make necessary information in mid-ocean.

And the radio supplies it. The fliers arriving from Ireland say that without the guiding radio they could not have made the flight. As we need things we get them.

Lord Derby, home from his visit here, says it isn't true that Americans always talk about money. "They talk about prohibition," says he, "and how best to avoid it."

He discovered that we do not hate the British. Of course we don't; we don't owe them money. If Europe didn't hate this country, conditions would be better. However, if we have enough airplanes and submarines, we need not worry about anyone's hate.

The hyena hates the lion. The lion does not care.

In the list of stocks, you observe that, with all our troubles and trials, American Tobacco B sold on Wednesday 80 points above its price earlier in the year.

G. W. Hill, president of the company, telling stockholders of greater profit, attributes the company's success "to newspaper advertising."

Newspaper advertising is to business, when you have what the people want, like water to arid land.

But all depends on THE KIND of advertising.

Mr. Hill, a young man, taking over his father's task, realized the importance of letting people know what you are doing, and started a campaign of aggressive, CONTROVERSIAL, advertising.

His success has been amazing, but he would say to any inquirer:

"Don't gamble in my stock, or any other."

Two kinds of bad news from India. In the Madras Presidency, police, firing at a crowd of "rebels," wounded seven.

More serious, from the imperial point of view, is the disastrous slump in cotton prices on the Bombay markets. Price restrictions have been withdrawn and many failures of cotton merchants are expected.

Wall Street wit, which described a broker opening his order book, releasing several moths, now says:

"Constructive forces are now in the saddle, but the saddle is not on the horse."

That talk is pleasing to the busy bears, but saddle and horse may be together soon and bears less happy.

An anti-prohibition congress, at Budapest, home town of the famous Tokay wine, denounces prohibition as "conducive to immorality and fraud."

Anti-prohibitionists here complain that it is conducive to bootlegging, crime, blackmailing and bribery.

Prohibitionists say that it has not yet had a fair chance to show what it can do.

500,000 ROAR WELCOME TO BYRD, POLAR HERO

As Admiral Byrd, Conquering Hero, Came Back to His Own Again

HUB WITH A THUNDER OF ACCLAIM CLASPS ADMIRAL TO HEART

Byrd Tells American 'Glad to Be Back'

Transmitted to the people of Boston, through the Boston Evening American

"I am very happy to return to Boston and see my friends here. My comrades and I looked forward to our visit and appreciate deeply the welcome given us."

R E Byrd

With a roar of greeting from half a million throats, Boston took Rear-Admiral Byrd to its heart today.

Under a blizzard of ticker tape, streamers and bits of paper, the Hub's own hero rode through lanes of people gathered in such numbers that repeatedly they broke the police lines and engulfed the explorer's car.

Thirty airplanes circled overhead, downtown traffic halted, and the thousands, standing 10 deep on the sidewalks and filling every vantage point on scores of buildings, thundered a welcome unexcelled in the annals of this 300-year-old city.

The rain ceased and the sun struggled to break through the clouds—and finally did—as the airman hero of two Polar journeys came into the streets to wave and bow and smile his acknowledgment of the unbridled ardor of the throng.

ACCLAIMED ON WAY

The man who had dropped his country's flag at the uttermost ends of the earth brought his comrades and his wife with him to share his honors—that's typical of Byrd—as he came back to nestle in the arms of his home city.

Due to receptions at stations along the route from New York, the Mayflower, New Haven flyer, bearing Admiral Byrd, his wife and the others in the party, arrived at the South Station 15 minutes late—at 2:19.

The crowd in and around the terminal had swelled to more than 50,000 and was growing constantly and the tension was increasing with the delay, so that the squads of police had difficulty holding the throng in check.

When the flyer steamed in, workmen on the girders of the old train shed, which is being razed, hammered on the steel, engine whistles shrieked, the crowd cheered, and Byrd, his car having been switched to a track at the far end of the station, to be near the waiting automobiles, strode up the platform, his wife at his side.

WELCOME BY MAYOR

A navy yard band struck up "The Stars and Stripes Forever,"

DRY LAW FAILS, SAYS WISE

Providence, R. I., June 27 (AP)—In what he said is the most comprehensive statement he has ever made about prohibition, Rabbi Stephen S. Wise of New York city declared here today:

"We now have to choose between enforcement, which, alas, seems impossible, and modification, which, alas, seems inevitable."

Rabbi Wise made his statement in explanation of his opposition yesterday to the introduction of a resolution urging repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment before the 41st annual convention of the central conference of American rabbis.

The resolution, which was tabled, was introduced by Rabbi Clifton Harby Levy of New York city. It was signed by five other rabbis—Max Reichler of Brooklyn, Louis I. Egleson of Cincinnati, Emil W. Leipziger of New Orleans, Alvin S. Luchs of New Rochelle, N. Y., and Abram Hirschburg of Chicago.

"The central conference, having

CONGRESSMAN PORTER DEAD

Pittsburgh, June 27 (AP)—The brilliant career of Stephen G. Porter, one of the nation's foremost statesmen, is ended.

Mr. Porter died at 2:40 a. m. (eastern daylight time) today in Allegheny General Hospital while messages of solicitude and sympathy poured in from all over the world. He had lapsed into unconsciousness early yesterday.

Congressman Porter was chairman of the House foreign affairs committee, leader in the world-wide fight for control of habit-forming drugs and dean of the Pennsylvania congressional delegation.

Foley Grills Parker Woman on Garrett

Dist. Atty. William J. Foley today questioned Jean Parker, indicted in the federal white slave probe, in connection with the hunt for Oliver B. Garrett, fugitive from justice.

The woman denied any knowledge of the whereabouts of the missing defaulter, and declared she had not seen him since the night he was "demoted" from the police liquor squad.

Mrs. Parker said she was sick of having her name linked with that of Garrett.

She was accompanied by Atty. Julius Stone of East Boston and said she understood the district attorney wanted to talk to her. The appointment had been arranged by her over the telephone.

Asked by the district attorney what she meant by the reference

Sox Game Off Today; Double Bill Sunday

Showers caused the postponement of the second game of the Red Sox-Chicago White Sox series scheduled to be played at Fenway Park, this afternoon. There will be a doubleheader Sunday, the first contest starting at 2:05 p. m.

2-SCORE DEAD IN STORMS

More than two-score lives were lost in a series of storms and gales through northern states and Ontario, Associated Press reports from various points in the stricken districts indicated today.

Storm resulted in two disasters, one of major proportions, in Ontario. At Brockville, Ont., 20 were killed when lightning fired explosives under a boat in St. Lawrence river.

Dr. Gilbert Rich, of 51 Summit ave., Brookline, an interne in a Boston hospital, has been notified that his share of the estate of his uncle, the late Dr. Michael Rich, of New York, is $380,200.

After 25 months of litigation, Dr. Rich received word the estate has been settled, with $131,500 going to Jewish hospitals and charities and the remainder to relatives.

Among these are included the testator's nephew, James McElroy Rich, 30, the son of the Brookline physician, who receives $10,000.

Sousa's stirring march, as the party moved toward the motor cars.

Admiral Byrd and Mayor Curley entered the first car. Mrs. Byrd, Adjutant General Jesse F. Stevens, Gardiner Fiske, the mayor's aviation representative and J. Philip O'Connell, director of public celebrations for the city, entered the second.

In the third car were Rear Admiral Louis M. Nulton, new commandant of the first naval district and the Boston navy yard; Marthew L. Walker, Capt. Ashley McKinley, Capt. Brown—three more of the Byrd party—and William J. Lynch, president of the city council.

MATES WITH HIM

Bernt Balchen and Harold June—both of whom flew over the South Pole with Byrd—were in the fourth car with various members of the reception committee.

With all traffic halted, the procession swung toward Dewey sq. and into Federal st. under the beginning of what turned out to be an almost steady shower of paper and streamers.

Federal st., looking from Milk st., appeared to be a waterfall of streamers. Arriving at Postoffice sq., Byrd stood up, doffed his cap and bowed, and Mayor Curley, taking off his own silk topper, led the crowd in cheers.

THRILLING OVATION

This was repeated at intervals all the way to the State House. In Congress st. the crowd got out of hand, and many persons jumped on the running board of Byrd's car to shake his hand. The crowd also broke through the ropes in Court st. at City Hall annex, so dense was the throng.

From all over the state and other parts of New England, crowds made their way to the Hub today to see the hero of the hour and his comrades.

Hardly had the first of them taken up the shout of acclaim, than guns at the navy yard boomed faintly in the distance and fire sirens shrieked. Then came the procession through the downtown streets, with Byrd feasting his eyes on the changes of a brace of years.

Came the deluge of ticker tape kisses thrown by pretty girls. "Atta boy, Dick!" from exuberant youths—and Dick Byrd had been hugged to his home city's heart.

Passing through Federal, Milk, Congress, State, Court, Tremont and Park sts., the procession reached and stopped at the State House, where Governor Allen greeted Byrd and the others of the party in his office and then led them to the front portico where he presented the leader with a gold medallion and the others with Tercentenary medals and gold state seals.

SECOND SALUTE FIRED

Guns of the 101st Field Artillery boomed the second 13-gun salute as the party proceeded to the Common for the city's main program. A huge throng awaited them there.

Amplifiers carried the brief State House exercises to the crowd in Beacon st. The medallion presented to Byrd, costing nearly $1000, bore on one side words commending him as a "citizen, intrepid pioneer and daring explorer."

The other side bears a representation of his flight over the South Pole and a lightning-like radio flash to represent his message to the world from that far away place. "Palma non sine pulvere" is the motto thereon, which, freely translated, means: "No triumph without toil."

CURLEY LAUDS HIM

At the Common exercises, Mayor Curley, lauding praise on the nation's illustrious son, said:

"We have watched your career and rejoiced in your every success and propose that neither you nor the memory of your glorious journey to the land of ice and snow shall fade with the passing of time."

The city had shields for the other Massachusetts men in the Byrd party, a handsome clock for the rear admiral and at a big banquet tonight, when 400 will pay their respects, will present him with the city's beautiful medalion, designed especially for the occasion.

To those who could not in person attend the ceremonies, the Boston Evening American, starting at 1:15 p. m., broadcast a description of the reception from station WHDH.

OTHERS SHARE GLORY

Among those with Byrd were Bernt Balchen, Harold June, Pilot Ivan Smith, Capt. Ashley C. McKinley, aerial surveyor; Capt. Gustave L. Brown, who commanded the steamer Eleanor Bolling; Kennard Rubier, aviation mechanic; Capt. F. H. Railey, A. K. Mills.

Also Paul A. Sipple, the boy scout; Capt. Frederick C. Melville, who commanded the steamer City of New York; Dr. Lawrence M. Gould, chief geologist; Arthur T. Walden, the famous dog-team driver of Wonalancet, N. H., who lost his equally famous dog, Chinook, on the ice barrier, and others.

Some of these came from New York with Byrd, the others were here to meet him and join him in the exercises.

Balchen and June are the pilots who flew with their commander over the southernmost tip of the globe. The former was honored here before after his flight over the Atlantic with Byrd and he was quickly recognized and honored with a large share of the applause.

Coming up from New York, Admiral Byrd told reporters that when the wear and tear of countless receptions is over he is "coming home to Boston to stay for awhile."

From the earliest moment of Byrd's appearance in the street, it was apparent that in depth of feeling Boston's greeting rivaled that of his own native state, Virginia.

The explorer's car was escorted by the National Lancers—a guard of honor. In the line of march were the 101th Calvary and its band, a Navy band, a detachment of sailors and marines.

A thousand school children waited the party on the Common to sing under Prof. John A. Shea, director of music in the public schools.

WISE SEES DRY LAW MODIFIED

taken no stand in other days on behalf of prohibition and the 18th amendment, would come rather belatedly into the picture if it, at this late date, professed itself in favor of repeal," said Dr. Wise, who described himself as one "identified with the prohibition cause for many years."

"It is true that we now have to choose between enforcement, which, alas, seems impossible, and modification, which, alas, seems inevitable.

"Personally, I have always felt that prohibition should have been given, as it was never given, a fair trial. The thing I have most hoped for from prohibition has utterly failed to come to pass—such liberation of the spirit of the people as would enable them to face problems of the social reconstruction of the commonwealth with clarity and sobriety. Instead of that, the mind of the nation is given almost undividedly to the liquor problem.

"In any event, it is hardly the business of the central conference to indulge in pronouncements which will re-enforce lawlessness instead of enforcing the law."

ASKS COURTESY FOR BIG PLANE

Washington, June 27—The friendly privilege of "courtesy of the port" will be extended to the giant Dornier flying boat DOX on its forthcoming flight from Germany, if Congress adopts a resolution introduced by Rep. Royal Johnson (R), of South Dakota.

Although port courtesies have been extended to transatlantic air passengers, this will be the first time that such a privilege has been extended to an airship itself.

Because of the unique significance of the flight of the Dornier DOX, the Johnson resolution has the endorsement of all interested branches of the government, including the War, Navy, Commerce and Treasury Departments.

In addition to providing free entry of the ship, the Johnson resolution also authorizes its operators to give a series of exhibition flights in this country. These courtesies are extended on condition that the boat make the return flight to Germany within one year from the date of entry.

MAYOR PRAISES HERO EXPLORER ON COMMON

Likens Byrd to Other Famed Sons of the Nation at Welcome Home

Likening Rear Admiral Byrd to the other illustrious sons of the old Dominion—Washington, Jefferson and others—Mayor Curley heaped praise on the Hub's distinguished resident today on the Common. The mayor presented Byrd with a clock at the close of his remarks.

The mayor's speech follows:

"Massachusetts and Virginia have had much in common from the inception of the movement for the establishment of the American Republic. That great son of Virginia to whose genius we are indebted for the word "equality" in the Declaration, Thomas Jefferson, was the recipient of aid in those trying days when the Republic had its birth, from Benjamin Franklin, Samuel Adams, John Hancock, James Otis and countless other Massachusetts men whose memories we revere.

"Upon this sacred spot where we are now assembled, the father of our nation trod, that great son of Virginia, Gen. George Washington. We revere the memory of these great sons of Virginia as profoundly for their achievements as we have you, sir, for your masterful accomplishments because they, like you, were actuated by the spirit through which man is ennobled, namely, service and sacrifice.

"It is recorded by Plutarch that Themostocles after a successful campaign, in a public address stressed his personal accomplishments, claiming credit for the work of his entire army until interrupted by a soldier who cried out: "Were their no soldiers with you." How different from that scene in ancient Greece this assemblage where the hero whom we are assembled to honor brings with him his army host, demanding they share equally the glory that has been achieved.

"You, sir, in your unselfish leadership epitomize the structure through which alone America can continue as the land of hope, promise and progress, namely, the spirit of equality.

"Our prayers have gone out to you in your long and lonesome journey to the South Pole and our hearts are this day filled with gladness at your homecoming. We rejoice that Almighty God has preserved in strength and health man's most treasured possessions, mother and wife, who this day are permitted to rejoice in your return to the best loved place on this earth: "Home, sweet home.

"The nation acclaims you, but we Bostonians may be pardoned if we claim you as a son of old Boston, whose accomplishments make you thrice dear. We have watched your career and rejoiced in every success.

"Consequently, upon this occasion we present you as a slight token of our affection this symbol of time and the Polar regions. May each tick of this clock convey to you a message of our affection and love for you, Unselfish, devoted service to your fellow man has been your good deed, which time cannot dim or the passing of time efface."

NAVAL TREATY CONDEMNED BY ROBINSON

Ratification Would Imperil the U. S. Safety, Says Indiana Senator on Air

Washington, June 27 (INS)—Another Senate opponent of the London naval treaty—Senator Robinson, Republican, of Indiana—adopted the radio today as a means of expressing his objections to the pact.

Declaring ratification would "very gravely imperil the safety and security of the United States," Robinson charged that even a cursory study of the London pact would convince the most skeptical it should not be ratified.

CUTS U. S. NEEDS

Under it, he declared, America would be prevented from building the type of ships best suited to her needs, while Great Britain and Japan would be assured of enormous benefits.

He spoke under the auspices of the National Grange over a national radio hookup.

He limited his attack principally to the cruiser provisions of the treaty, which would allow America only 18 10,000-ton cruisers armed with eight-inch guns. The Navy General Board had estimated 21 such craft as the "irreducible minimum" to provide American safety.

HOW BRITAIN WINS.

Robinson explained the six-inch gun cruiser was desirable for Great Britain, inasmuch as she has a world-wide, closely knit system of naval bases.

"With us, however," he said, "it is quite different. While our overseborne commerce is as large as that of Great Britain, we have practically no naval bases worthy of the name, and those we do have in the far Pacific are unfortified, in accordance with the Washington treaty.

"Because of this we require cruisers of the largest possible tonnage, of the heaviest armament possible and the widest cruising range."

BYRD LAUDS 12 MEN TO ALLEN

At the State House, Admiral Byrd introduced each of the 12 Massachusetts members of his expedition to Governor Allen, explaining the part that each had played in the Antarctic.

After Governor Allen's address of welcome and presentation of a medallion, made on the State House steps, the admiral said:

"We don't begin to deserve the nice things you have said about us, but I suppose it is only human for us to like them. Three hundred years ago the Massachusetts Bay Colony was founded by the Pilgrim fathers. Three hundred years later I bring back to you from this expedition 12 residents of this commonwealth, all descendants of the Pilgrim fathers, who were 100 per cent perfect in their duties."

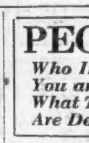
Man's Job to Support Wife, Says Mix

Los Angeles, June 27—Mrs. Douglas Gilmore's daddy believes that her newly acquired husband should support her.



Mrs. Gilmore

Tom Mix, famous film and circus cowboy has hailed Mrs. Gilmore, who is his 17-year-old daughter Ruth, into court, to show why his $250 a month allowance to her should not be discontinued.

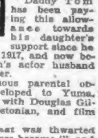
Daddy Tom has been paying this allowance towards his daughter's support since he was divorced in 1917, and now believes that Ruth's actor husband should support her.

Despite strenuous parental objections, Ruth eloped to Yuma, Arizona, June 9, with Douglas Gilmore, native Bostonian, and film actor.

Ruth's elopement was thwarted twice when Gilmore became ill, and later when Mrs. Mix unintentionally locked her daughter's car door, only to discover that she had foiled an attempted elopement.

Ancient Alting of Iceland Convenes

Thingvellir, Iceland, June 27—Standing on a huge rock in the middle of the Plain of Thingvalla, Christian, King of Denmark, opened the 1930 session of the Icelandic Alting yesterday. It was on this plain that this oldest parliament in the world was convened approximately 1000 years ago.



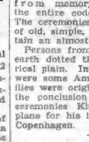
King Christian

History tell of Grim Goatheard, the ancient lawgiver, standing on this plain and reciting from memory the entire code of Icelandic law. The ceremonies yesterday were as of old, simple, so simple as to obtain an almost religious aspect.

Persons from all corners of the earth dotted the broad and historical plain. Included among these were some Americans whose families were originally Icelandic. At the conclusion of the impressive ceremonies King Christian made plans for his immediate return to Copenhagen.

Mrs. Taft Given Lunch by Polish Diplomats

Warsaw, Poland, June 27—Mrs. William Howard Taft, widow of the late chief justice and former President, who is now on a tour of Europe, was entertained yesterday at a luncheon by Polish officials. Foreign Minister August Zaleski acted as toastmaster at the luncheon in her honor.



Mrs. Taft

As a mark of gratitude to Mrs. Taft for her unselfish service to her husband, Congress recently passed a bill granting her the free use of the mails. Mrs. Taft is one of the few women not connected with official Washington who enjoys this privilege.

After the luncheon, Mrs. Taft made preparations to leave the Polish capital for Mariensbad, Czechoslovakia, where she will be entertained by the diplomatic corps. She is expected to return to the United States some time in the early fall.

"G. B." Gets Best Vote for Brains of Realm

London, June 27—No woman received a vote in the "Spectator's" search for England's best brains. George Bernard Shaw's intelligence was voted the best in the country. The "Spectator" circulates among the thoughtful class whose opinions of mental ability are regarded by the British as worth considering.

The results of the popular vote showed that Sir Oliver Lodge received second place with 185 votes, and Prime Minister MacDonald did not receive a single vote. Gilbert K. Chesterton, author, received 37 votes and Sir James Barrie, playwright, was supported by 35 voters.

G. B. Shaw

Others listed in the poll were: Lord Birkenhead, 262; Winston Churchill, 95; Dean Inge, 91; H. G. Wells, historian, 86; Lord Melchett, 62; David Lloyd George, ex-prime minister, 50; Sir John Simon, 43; Lord Reading, 35, and Philip Snowden received the support of 45.

Polar Hero Tells of Feats Performed by N. E. Mates as He Speeds Home

By JOHN H. NOONAN.

Aboard the Byrd Train, June 27—The crack morning train of the New Haven road, the Mayflower, brought Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd home today.

With his wife at his side, and Igloo—the famous little fox terrier that has been to both the North and South Poles—tugging at a leash, he was led from the Biltmore hotel to the Grand Central station by a police detail, amid the cheers of thousands.

Mrs. Byrd, carrying a model of the Floyd Bennett, presented her husband yesterday in Brooklyn by school children, was smiling and happy as they started for home and the children, one of whom the admiral has not yet seen, baby Helen, Richard, Evelyn and Katherine met him in New York.

Boarding the train in New York, he said:

"This reception business is harder on man than his duties at any pole."

GREETS REPORTERS.

At Bridgeport Mayor E. T. Buckingham and committee of citizens extended him an invitation to visit their city. He promised if opportunity can be found.

Byrd walked into his compartment, greeted reporters, unleashed Igloo and said:

"Run around old pal."

"First of all let me say a word about the Kingsford-Smith fliers. They are a gallant group, and I have had many pleasant words from them."

Then he said:

"Boston is our home and we sure are glad to get back. Just as soon as this hospitality business lets up a bit, I mean to come home and enjoy a normal existence for a while. You boys don't appreciate the wear and tear of this hospitality business. It taxes much more than any expedition work."

"First let me say a few words to the folks at home about those three boys from Harvard. The three musketeers as I call them, Eddie Goodale, Fred Crockett and Norman Vaughn. They have given more than two years of life, contributed much to the expedition and were true gentlemen every hour of the journey.

"Their job was to drive dogs over 1500 miles, the longest trip ever ice that has ever been made. The dog sled journeys were made over dangerous crevices and under hazardous conditions.

"Another Boston boy, Jack Bird, a pal of "The Three Musketeers," made a study of the bird life in the Arctic and was of great help and assistance.

"George Black, supply officer, had an important post and filled it well.

"The personnel officer, Charlie Lofgren, who was born just outside of Boston, in Newton, I think, is an old navy man and he was of very great help to me. He was always on the job.

THE BOSS OF THE DOGS

Arthur Walden, who may not want his age known, but he is 55, and has charge of the dogs. You know what the dogs did. His team, hauling the heaviest load fro mthe edge of the ice to Little America, showed what Walden could do on the trail.

"Thos. Arnold Clark, who assisted in the magnetic work, was a very important factor in our success.

"I want to say a word of Richard E. Danielson of Boston, who has been active in the Byrd Aviation associates, who helped me greatly while I was gone. Then Reginald W. Bird of Framingham, father of Jack Bird, went to the bat for me when I needed material assistance. I want to acknowledge what Boston has done for me and I take this chance to express my thanks."

to Garrett being demoted, Mrs. Parker said it was the time he was transferred from the liquor squad to Division 3.

"He was all broken up that night," she said.

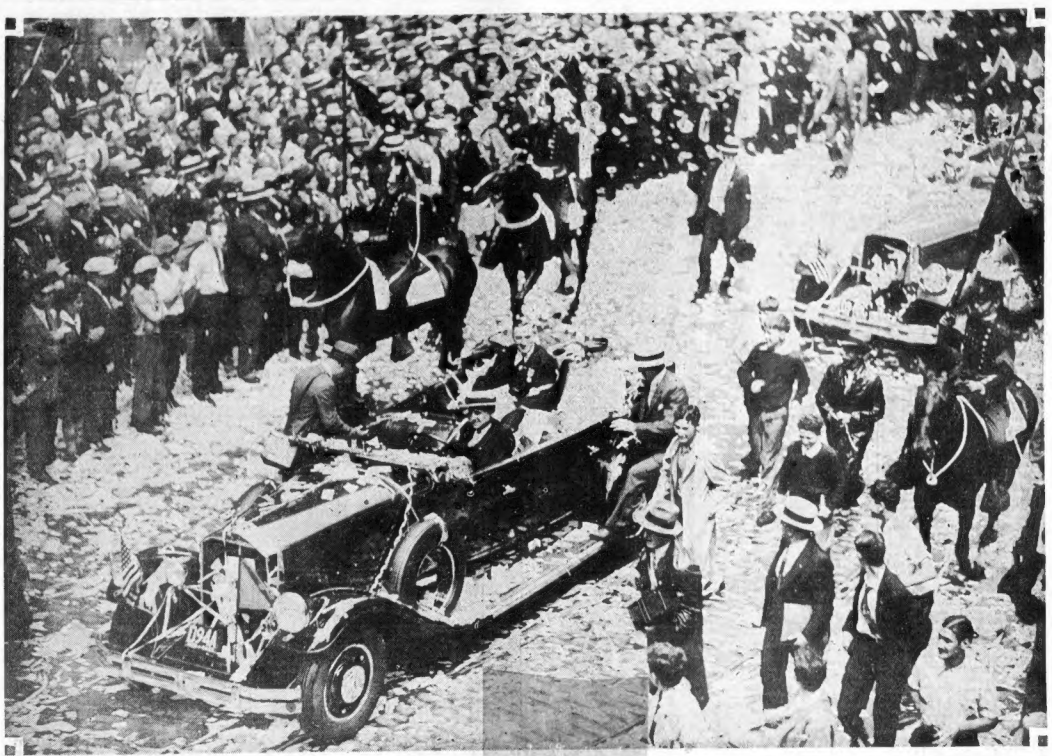
The district attorney said no reference was made in the talk to the fact that Mrs. Parker's name was linked to an apartment recently found to be filled with guns and ammunition. Neither was her indictment by a federal grand jury for alleged violation of the Mann Act taken up.

Foley said that when he asked Mrs. Parker to account for her time since Garrett's disappearance, she at first said she was in Florida, but smiled and he gathered she was joking.

Later he said she gave a detailed recital of where she had been which satisfied him of her truthfulness. He added she blamed some of her "rivals" for writing letters to the State House.

She was attired in black and had put on considerable weight since her arraignment in federal court.

Market Worries Forgotten as State Street Stages Wild Welcome to Byrd



THE MIGHTY OF BOSTON'S financial world turned from their cares today to join in the tumultuous welcome home to Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd, U. S. N., hero polar explorer. The picture, taken at State and Devonshire sts., shows the scene that Byrd faced as the machine containing the explorer and Mayor Curley crawled between lanes of cheering thousands to the State House and the Common. It was a greeting Byrd will never forget. The polar explorer went to his home on Brimmer st. after the welcome. (Staff photo.)

Veteran Priest Dies in Syracuse, N. Y.

Syracuse, N. Y., June 27 (AP)—After 43 years' service in the priesthood, Rev. Dr. George S. Mahon, 70, widely known pastor of the Most Holy Rosary Church here, is dead of a heart attack. He was ill for several years.

Toronto, Ont., July 27 (AP)—Peleg Howland, who rose from office boy to president of the Imperial Bank of Canada, died suddenly at his home here last night.

Denies Seeing Garrett

PLANE NEARING NEW RECORD

Chicago, June 27 (AP)—The City of Chicago, piloted by the Hunter Brothers, John and Kenneth, entered its 16th day in the air at 4:40 (Central daylight time) yesterday. Only 60 hours and 21 minutes more remained to tie the world's non-stop endurance record of 420 hours and 21 minutes, now held by the St. Louis Robin, the goal of the City of Chicago pilots is 500 hours.

$1000 BOND RAINS ON BYRD

The most expensive bit of paper to flutter into the streets of Boston during the Byrd reception was a $1000 U. S. Steel bond, that floated out the window of the office of Jackson & Curtis, Congress st. brokers.

It was trampled under foot by the crowd and finally rescued, intact, by a worried employe of the company.

Our Own Dick Byrd Comes Home Today

TWO YOUNG MEN of this generation, both of them knights of the air, have captured the unstinted affections of the American people by their intrepidity and by their modest decorum—Col. Lindbergh and Admiral Byrd.

We salute Richard Evelyn Byrd.

Dick Byrd can be accounted the outstanding explorer of the ages. Dramatically, but without dramatics, courageously, but without ostentation, he alone has explored the nethermost ends of the world by airplane. He has planted the American flag where its colors had never before been kissed by the sun. He has traversed by plane and charted by the unfailing eye of the camera 160,000 square miles of earth which the eye of man had not previously scanned.

His contribution to science commands admiration. But he inspires our sentimental affection because by his prowess and daring he has demonstrated the energy and ingenuity of American youth.

President Hoover said of Byrd, "He is beloved of the American people."

Boston is his home town. We can be forgiven today if we throw dignity out the window and give to Dick Byrd an uproarious reception measured by no bounds of enthusiasm.

Atlantic Fliers Cut Out N. Y. Parades

New York, June 27 (AP)—Maj. Kingsford-Smith and comrades of the monoplane Southern Cross today were honored guests of the city of New York.

Parades up the harbor and Broadway had been planned, but the fliers asked for a less ambitious program.

The result was a police escorted ride to City Hall from their hotel, a brief welcome from Mayor Walker and a luncheon at the Advertising Club.

Thousands of persons gathered to cheer the air voyagers. The front of City Hall was decorated with the flags of Great Britain and the United States.

Kingsford-Smith and his comrades, Capt. J. Patrick Saul, Evert Van Dyke and John W. Stannage, will fly to Schenectady, N. Y., tomorrow so that Kingsford-Smith may talk to his mother and fiances in Australia by short wave radio.

Mrs. Evert Van Dyk, wife of the co-pilot of the Southern Cross, will speak to America over the radio from Hilversum, Holland, tonight between 10 and 10:30 (Boston daylight time.

Kingsford-Smith and crew will be received by President Hoover in Washington at the White House Monday at 12:30 o'clock.

Byrd's Dog, Igloo, Seems to Wonder What It's About

Admiral Byrd's dog, Igloo, rode in the lap of the guests in a car following the explorer's and seamed to be wondering what it was all about and whether such things were to be a weekly occurence hereafter.

SIDELIGHTS ON RECEPTION TO 'DICK' BYRD

New Englanders Join in Acclaim Along Route From New York to Boston

Providence greeted Rear Admiral Byrd royally. The explorer went to the observation platform at the rear of the train to acknowledge the welcome. Mayor Dunne invited him to visit the city and Byrd promised to do so, if possible. Ex-Gov. San Souci welcomed him in behalf of the state, Gov. Case being out West.

Byrd shook hands with scores of children held up by parents.

Recognizing Alexander Geisler, a member of the North Polar party of several years ago, in the crowd, Byrd shouted to him, and Balchen and Byrd induced Geisler to go aboard and come to Boston with the party.

"You should have been with us down South," said Byrd, as he shook Geisler's hand.

Attleboro, Mansfield and other cities and towns turned out crowds to wave as the train passed through in the Readville yards of the New Haven railroad engine whistles shrieked a din of welcome. At Forest Hills auto horns tooted loudly as the train whizzed over the parkway.

Igloo, the little fox terrier, who has seen the Far North and the Far South with his master, attracted considerable attention aboard the train. His nose is marked with scratches that apparently never will be obliterated, and Harold June, co-pilot with Balchen in the flight over the South Pole, explained the scratches were received when Igloo tried to assert his leadership over bigger dogs in the Antarctic.

Workmen busy tearing down the old train-shed at the South Station hammered a welcome on the steel as the Mayflower arrived. Byrd's special car and the other bearing newspapermen were switched from the train to track 26 for convenience. The autos were waiting at the Dorchester ave. end of the station.

Mrs. Byrd made herself inconspicuous at every station where a stop was made.

John Weeks, 88, of Westfield, came to Boston especially for the reception and stood at a vantage point in Federal st. to cheer the explorer and his party.

Sidewalks and streets in the financial district were ankle deep with torn telephone books and ticker tape long before the parade passed.

Somebody gawking at a plane overhead stepped on the pet corn of a man in Federal st.

"No, but my corns ache every day."

South Station, a mass of people, sent forth the greatest shout that has ever greeted a returned hero since the day of Dewey.

"Isn't he grand," this was the consensus of the fair sex as they saw Byrd.

Of all the celebrities who have been the guests of the City of Boston, Byrd, probably, will be remembered as the most modest and affable.

Byrd's hand was extended to shake the hand of everyone that got within reach of him, no matter whether a person of the official party or a spectator.

One of Boston's Gifts to Its Hero Flier

REAR ADMIRAL RICHARD E. BYRD, air explorer, welcomed home in a wild manner by Boston today, will never look at this clock without recalling his return to the Hub after his exploration of the Antarctic. The clock was presented to Rear Admiral Byrd at the Parkman bandstand by Mayor Curley as a gift of the city. Two seals uphold the clock on the stand.

Tercentenary Pilgrimages—No. 17

CRADOCK HOUSE, MEDFORD.

AS FAMILIES ARE TRACED back to first settlers, so houses have their records. The patriarch of them all is said to be at 350 Riverside ave., Medford. On good authority, the Cradock House has the reputation of being the oldest building now standing in New England, if not in the United States.

The handiwork of the first planters, the date of erection over the door has been set as 1634. If so, then this "old fort," as it is affectionately called by Medford folk, has passed its tercentenary by six years.

It is competing with modern houses about it as a dwelling in excellent repair and with modern comforts. Seldom has it been idle in its 300 years of service.

Built by the agents of Matthew Cradock on a slight hill, near the Mystic, surrounded by marshes and meadows, its situation was impregnable as well as practical for commercial purposes. Down the river the Indians came with their valuable furs; the pastures were filled with cattle; nearby the old clay pit, still in existence, and bottomless in places, furnished bricks, of which this house is said to have been built.

In its early days, a palisade enclosed it, the gates were guarded and port holes in the house allowed the use of guns to ward off attack.

Matthew Cradock never lived in America, although he had expressed his intention of visiting the colonies. He was the governor of a commercial organization in England and instigated the transfer of the seat of government from England to America.

The Mystic Plantation was founded by Gov. Craddock and his company, with their agents who settled in the wilderness along the river bank. Mystic Plantation was later changed to Meadford and finally Medford.

The Cradock House has also been called the Peter Tufts house. Peter Tufts was born in England and came to America about 1640. He settled in Malden but bought land in Medford. His oldest son was named Peter, and was popularly known as Captain Peter.

Captain Peter was born in Malden in 1648, and in 1676 he became a selectman at Medford, at the age of twenty-eight. One authority claims that he built the house in the period 1677-80, but older histories claim it as Governor Cradock's, whose land it was in the beginning. At a much later date, General Lawrence, in a public-spirited generosity, repaired the old dwelling and saved it from destruction.

This "Old Fort" has stood silently and staunchly, while great men have passed and events transpired. Charles I was king during the period it was probably built. Cromwell was yet to be powerful. Peter the Great and Frederick the Great were unknown. Louis XVI has since known the guillotine, while Napoleon's star has set. The Indian, the English trader to the wilderness, the colonist who strove to settle a new continent have gone—but this house stands.

Medford sq. is reached by electries from Sullivan terminal, and Riverside ave., once called Ship st., begins at Medford sq.

Tipsy Hens Reveal Still; 2 Men Held

A barnyard revel in which a tipsy hen led to the finding of a 400-gallon still in Ipswich, brought three men before Commissioned Jeney in United States Court today.

John Brandio of Cambridge and Paul Rosslin of Ipswich were held each in $1000, charged with liquor law violations; Eugene De Grampre of Newton rd., Ipswich, was allowed to go on his own recognizance.

R-100 to Hop West During Last of July

London, June 27 (AP)—The air minister, Lord Thompson, told the Imperial Press Conference today that the airship R-100 would leave for Montreal on its maiden transatlantic journey during the last of July.

Lord Thompson added that he himself would make a journey in the other new British dirigible, R-101, to India in September.

Police Fire Upon Strikers in Malaga

London, June 27 (AP)—A Reuter dispatch from Gibraltar said that all shops and cafes still were closed in Malaga, Spain, as a result of the strike declared yesterday in sympathy with the labor walkout at Seville.

Some disorder occurred yesterday, with numerous parades and demonstrations, and the police were forced to use their firearms.

Duke of York in Auto Collision

London, June 27 (AP)—The Duke of York, second son of King George, was in a slight automobile accident today, but emerged unhurt.

Just before he arrived at Lord's cricket ground to witness the second test match with the Australians his motor car collided with another motor car and was slightly damaged.

DON'T SUFFER FROM CONSTIPATION

Prevent It This Pleasant, Healthful Way

Beware of the frequent headaches, the listless feeling, bad breadth and sallow complexion.

If allowed to continue, constipation may get its grip on you and serious sickness can result.

The poisonous wastes in your system must be removed. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to do this—safely, completely. Just eat two tablespoonfuls daily—recurring cases, with every meal.

Doctors recommend Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. Because it is ALL-BRAN it brings complete results. Far better than habit-forming drugs or pills that are often dangerous. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN not only prevents and relieves constipation pleasantly—it also supplies your blood with the iron it needs to keep a healthy color and a strong body.

Ready to eat with milk or cream. Delicious with fruits or honey added. Recipes are on the package for muffins and breads. Sold by all grocers. Served by hotels, restaurants and dining-cars. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Doesn't Like School Teacher Restrictions

Editor Boston American:

The City of Boston has climaxed its campaign for a greater metropolitan area with a display of provincialism amply demonstrating, that despite its claims to greatness, Boston is still thinking small town thoughts.

I refer of course to the recent vote of the Boston school committee to insist that all future candidates for teaching posts in the public school system be residents of Boston.

Citizens of cities and towns within the so-called "Metropolitan area" will certainly be anxious to affiliate themselves with a municipal corporation which begins its good will campaign with such a flagrant action of discrimination.

In the past Boston has recruited some of its best teachers from other centers. In the future, regardless of qualifications a resident will be chosen to the exclusion of others. It may work out well but I doubt it.

Think Display Money Could Be Spent for Poor

Editor Boston American:

Boston spends thousands of dollars to welcome Admiral Byrd home again after his two-year sojourn in the Antarctic. Bands blare, banners fly and everything will be done to honor him.

I, with thousands of others, admire the admiral for bleadeeds, but I think that the city of Boston would do well to spend its money for the relief of the poor and unemployed rather than throwing it away in such demonstrations.

Regardless of the high sounding platitudes relative to prosperity that have been heard on every side, Boston is in a very serious situation economically and can ill afford to squander public funds in this manner. We wouldn't do it in Tewksbury.

Tewksbury. R. R. L.

Urges All Boston to Join in Welcome to Byrd

Editor Boston American:

Through your live columns I should like to appeal to every true American to attend Boston's celebration to its own hero, Richard Byrd. There has been dissention between city and state officials, as reported through the press, but that should not permit any showing of lukewarm feelings on the part of the general public in turning out as never before to welcome home one of the greatest men of all time.

New York went wild about Dick Byrd. Let Bostonians do more. He belongs to Boston. He lives in Boston. Boston should welcome him royally. If we are to reach that group of young men, dissatisfied and disillusioned, we can through the epic heroism of Byrd. BOOSTER.

Boston.

Lauds American for Garrett Reward Offer

Editor Boston American:

Your paper is to be congratulated on its offer of a reward of $1000 for the capture of Oliver H. Garrett. Ever a crusader, ever a champion of the people's rights, this generosity on the part of the American is another instance of public service.

We of the masses are anxious for the capture of Garrett and his return to jurisdiction for trial. The Commonwealth should leave no stone unturned in bringing him to justice, if justice there be in this day and age, for State authorities should realize the unrest of the mob if Garrett is let go unharmed.

Massachusetts must retain its grand old name and its traditional reputation of honor. Men like Garrett not only undermine the common people's thoughts but further the cause of the Reds.

Go after Garrett! Get him! And may the Boston American reap the merit of the capture.

JUSTICE.

Urges Pension for All World War Veterans

Editor Boston American:

I am a World War vet, not disabled and do not rate any compensation for disability. A big American Legion convention is due soon in Boston, big parades, etc. Now why are so many veterans being laid off from work. I am a citizen and pay poll taxes and was born in this country, but I am laid off just the same. I would suggest a very thorough check-up of these factories that are doing this to find out the answer.

The disabled veterans are being pretty well taken care of now. Let's do a little for the ones that are willing to work, surely they must at least rate a chance to live until they die. What we need is this: Let them arrange to cash our adjusted service certificates for the full amount stated thereon. And to pass that bill for pension of $50 per month for all veterans which would give those now disabled and drawing compensation their choice of compensation or pension. I believe this to be square and fair, but we must have action.

Optometrists Thank American for Aid

Editor Boston American:

The daily reports which the Boston Evening American made of the American Optometric Association convention in Boston, June 15-20, helped greatly to make the convention an unqualified success. We appreciate your co-operation more than it is possible to express in words.

As secretary of the New England Council of Optometrists, I am instructed to convey the most sincere thanks of the officers and of every delegate who attended the convention. Sincerely yours,

CURTIS R. WELLS.

Newport Mayor Invites Ryan to See Races

Editor Boston American:

Mayor Sullivan of Newport, R. I., has extended an invitation to William A. Ryan of Dorchester (author of the Tercentenary) to sit by his side at the boat races and water carnival listed for that city in a few weeks. Mr. Ryan will go with some members of his family—and incidentally take greetings from Mayor Curley of Boston to the mayor of the Rhode Island city.

WILLIAM A. RYAN,
Dorchester.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

Editor Boston American:

We have had reams of paper and rivers of ink devoted to the subject of vehicular traffic conditions in Boston and the remedies therefor, but I have never seen the hint of a suggestion toward the relief of sidewalk congestion.

That, to my mind, is the most important and the most disregarded problem confronting municipal authorities. Take the main thoroughfare—Washington st. for example—at the height of the noonday rush. Men, women, and children hurry along without any regard for the rights of others.

First they are on one side of the street, and then on the other, weaving in and out. The result of course, is evident. Tremendous crowds of people going in either direction jostling and bustling and in the end making very little progress.

The women are the worst offenders. Once they are intent on shopping they lose all idea of time and place and are interested only in getting to their destination. It might be well for the traffic commission to draft a set of rules for pedestrians using the sidewalks. Why not "Keep to the right?"

WRECK BAKERY IN PROVIDENCE BREAD WAR

Providence, June 27 (AP)—"Racketeers" in an Italian bread war here wrecked a co-operative bakery today when four armed men destroyed a new supply of flour, 1500 loaves of bread, dough for 1000 loaves and wooden mixing bowls.

Two suspects are held for investigation.

Two men with revolvers covered the three bakery workers, backed them into the front section of the bakery and the two others began their despoiling work. One baker was clubbed.

Gasoline was thrown over the cooling loaves and into the mixed dough. Flour was scattered from bags and gasoline poured over it.

"If you start up again tonight, you get a bomb."

The police reported that a man walked into an Eagle Park bakery of the same ownership last night and declared:

"This is your last day in business."

The wrecked bakery is one of eight small bakeries established seven weeks ago, when Emilio Iavazzo organized unemployed bakers and launched the Economy Bakery Co-operation. This concern, with a daily production of 4000 loaves, began at once underselling and cutting into the regular trade in Italian bread, it is said.

Following the assault, girls employed in selling bread declared they would take no chances of physical violence and walked out of the stores of the co-operative concern.

Opened Advertising Business 50 Yrs. Ago

It was just 50 years ago this month that Franklin P. Shumway started in the advertising business in small quarters at 21 Bromfield st., his first order being from Oliver Ditson, the Boston music publisher.

For 24 years he slowly but steadily increased the business and then, in 1904, incorporated under the firm name of the Franklin P. Shumway Co.

The Shumway agency has been identified for years with advertising and sales promotion of many of New England's largest manufacturers and merchants.

Discovers New Dye to Aid in Kidney Diagnoses

Detroit, June 27 (AP)—Discovery of a dye which makes the kidneys opaque to the X-ray when injected into the veins was reported at a meetin of the radiology section of the American Medical Association convention here.

The new dye, discovered by Dr. Arthur Binz of Berlin, was hailed as an aid to diagnosis of kidney infections, heretofore a painful process fraught with dangers of inaccuracy.

Announcement of the discovery of the dye known as uroselectan, was made by Leopold Jacho of New York. Dr. Binz said by use of uroselectan, kidneys now stand out as vividly as bone structure under the X-ray. Tests have proved, he said, that uroselectan can be injected without deleterious effects upon the patient.

Uroselectan, Dr. Binz said, soon will become available everywhere for clinical purposes.

Unidentified Man Dies on Street Car

Collapsing in a street car bound from Jamaica Plain to Dudley st. today, an unidentified aged man was rushed to City Hospital, where he was pronounced dead by physicians. William McAuley, Boston newspaper writer, hailed a passing automobile and accompanied the man to the hospital. He is described as 68 years of age, 5 feet 9 inches in height and weighs about 220 pounds.

32 IN NEW LIFE GUARD EXAMS AFTER PROTEST

A second examination of 32 candidates for lifeguards who had failed to pass a previous test, was held this morning under the direction of Civil Service Examiner Jack Wallace at Curtis Hall, Jamaica Plain.

The second examination was ordered by Civil Service Commissioner Goodwin, following charges of unfairness of Wallace during the first test.

In the first test 40 expert swimmers who had saved many lives at public beaches failed to pass.

Several candidates charged that certain applicants who had been members of a life-saving class instructed by Wallace had passed the test, while more experienced lifesavers had failed. Unnecessary

ADMIRAL BYRD'S WELCOME OVER W H D H

Broadcast Goes Out From the South Station and Boston Common, Beginning at 1:15

Through the courtesy of officials of the South Station, and the Boston Park Commission, the Boston Evening American, through the services of Station WHDH were enabled to broadcast direct from the arena of action into the homes of thousands of listeners, every movement and phase of the great welcome which is being given to Admiral Richard E. Byrd and his gallant companions at their homecoming.

Long before the train was to deliver its load at 1:55 at the South Station, the American radio announcer was before the "mike," especially set up for the purpose at the incoming track, where he painted a vivid word picture of what was transpiring at that place. He told about the crowds, let you hear for yourselves the noise of the thousands who are striving to get a glimpse of the explorers, and told you when at last the train pulled in how the men were received and what they said.

At the Parkman bandstand on the Common, where the other WHDH microphone is placed, also with an Evening American announcer on duty, you were enabled to hear the great chorus of 3000 school children singing; you heard Governor Allen, Mayor Curley and prominent officials of city and State welcome Byrd to Boston.

From start to finish WHDH followed every movement of the explorer's afternoon welcome. WHDH had the exclusive privileges of broadcasting his arrival at South Station.

When the festivities have been concluded, WHDH will recount the story of the day's events, and a musical program will follow.

At the Dial

Exclusive broadcasting privilege goes to WBZA at 7:30 tonight when Admiral Byrd is tendered a dinner at the Copley-Plaza. Mayor Curley will present the explorer with a gold medallion, and there will also be musical entertainment as well as speeches by city and state officials.

The actual experience of Maj. George Witten will be presented tonight on the Gold Seal Merchants program from WNAC at 8:30.

The major's biography will be presented in drama form with a Columbia cast assisting him. From a road kid consorting with hobos and dodging the law to a commission in the British field artillery, is the story of this man. He was a soldier in the Boer War and is a veteran of the World War.

THE CONFLICT of the hour is "Anchors Aweigh" vs. Swingin' In a Hammock." We heard the latter played no less than seven times list night. And Leo Reisman's Knox Dunlappers outplayed the other six pretenders with his version. On the heels of that number the Reisman orchestra excellently emitted "St. James Infirmary Blues," only a moment as though he were in the throes of agony. The way Reisman last night made us want him back in Boston.

The RCA hour showed themselves in a new light last night. Popular music for the rest of the summer is their program, and it is a peculiar sensation to turn to the staid RCA hour and hear hot rhythms pounded out. Yet they haven't forfeited one bit of their fine playing, for although they played jazz, Nat Shilkret and his orchestra didn't slam it around like a tennis ball. Space doesn't permit the telling of the high spots of the program for each number was a high spot in itself.

The BOND Half-Yearly SALE of Two Trouser Suits Starts today!

We have an old-fashioned idea that these regular half-yearly sales should, above all, make new friends — — and retain the business and regard of our old ones. That's why we refuse to artificially "dress up" our price reductions with "special purchases" of "odds and ends" and inferior merchandise. We think style perfection is just as necessary during a sale as during a season. We believe fabric quality is as important to men who buy their clothes in July as to those who buy in April.

And so, only suits from the regular Bond stocks are sold in these half-yearly events. There are light patterns, medium patterns, dark patterns. There are London-Designed sack suits, American-Designed collegiates, and an abundance of smart conservatives. There are sizes for all builds.

You'll like the way we do business during a sale. Our friendly service and dependable merchandise aren't put away in "moth balls"! And you'll like the cash savings, too! They match any we've ever given since our first half-yearly sale, 17 years ago.

Use Bond Ten Payment Budget Service!

We have not added one cent to our regular cash prices. This is a thrifty service!

We exact no interest or carrying charges of any kind. This is a friendly service!

Just pay $10 when you buy, the balance in ten weekly payments — and that's all!

Ten Extra Prizes Are Added to Marion Davies Style Contest

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Los Angeles, June 27—BIG NEWS! TEN ADDITIONAL PRIZES OF $100 EACH FOR THE MARION DAVIES "FLORODORA" CONTESTANTS!

When Miss Davies was told how many thousands of letters had been received she decided to increase the number of prizes. She thought it only fair that those who sent in exceptionally good letters should have some recognition.

Listen carefully now while I explain Miss Davies' plan. In addition to the two prizes of $500 each, there will be 10 other prizes of $100 each. In other words, the man who has written the best and most intelligent letter with a comparison of the styles of the "Gay Nineties" and today will receive $500. The woman who has written the most comprehensive and original letter on the same subject will receive another $500. Then there will be the 10 other lucky winners who will receive $100 each.

In order to facilitate the awarding of these prizes it has been decided to divide the United States into 10 areas. The Boston area will include the states of Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut.

The other areas will be designated as follows: Seattle, California, San Antonio, Atlanta, New York, Omaha, Chicago, Pittsburgh and Washington.

In each one of these areas some man or woman will be awarded a prize of $100 so watch the Hearst papers in your section for the announcement.

MARION DAVIES

The contest closed June 14 and no more letters can be accepted. I might add the jury is still out. There were thousands and thousands of letters from every state in the union and it takes time to read these contributions. We want to give everybody a chance and we want to be sure that every letter is read.

The judges, Eleanor Meherin, Helen Kouse, Henry Clive, Amos Parrish and Louella O. Parsons, will announce the awards at the earliest possible moment.

B. & M. TRAIN TEARS UP ROAD

Brattleboro, Vt., June 27 (AP)—A Boston & Maine passenger train, bound from White River Junction to Springfield, Mass., by way of Northfield, Mass., had a narrow escape from serious accident today.

About six miles from here, near the Central Park station, one end of the front drive rod came off. After tearing up the roadbed for 100 feet it swung up and punctured the boiler, letting out all steam and water. One of the middle drive wheels was broken and fell off, and the corresponding wheel on the other side was derailed. The rod then tore up about 150 feet more of the roadbed before the train was stopped.

Passengers were returned here and sent down the New Hampshire side of the road to Northfield.

The train was in charge of a Central Vermont Railroad crew.

CAREFUL BUYERS OF GINGER ALE get 4 EXTRA OUNCES

They ask for Clicquot Club Pale Dry
It comes in full 16-ounce pints

TODAY, more and more women are learning about the most economical way to buy ginger ale. They are buying it in full size pints.

"When Clicquot Club Pale Dry gives you a full pint in every bottle, why accept ⅓ less?" they say. The little 12-ounce bottle is never quite enough to go around. Full-size pints are so much more economical.

And of all the nationally known dry ginger ales only one comes in this convenient size. It is Clicquot Club Pale Dry. You buy a pint. You get a pint!

Finer flavor too—In addition to this handy size bottle, Clicquot Club Pale Dry gives you a flavor unequalled in any other dry ginger ale.

Two vital factors make the rare and mellow flavor of Clicquot Club possible.

First, Clicquot Club is aged 6 months in the making. We long ago discovered that such ageing imparts a rich, delightful flavor to ginger ale.

Second, we take pure table sugar, fine Jamaica ginger, real fruit flavors, and blend them with pure spring water to a formula known to no other maker of ginger ale.

Make this comparison—Just go to your dealer today and ask him to show you a bottle of Clicquot Club Pale Dry. Compare it with a so-called "pint" of any other dry ginger ale. You'll note that the Clicquot bottle contains 4 ounces more. The label tells the story.

Compare them for flavor, too, and we're sure you'll always ask for Clicquot Club Pale Dry. In clean new bottles. No bottle ever used a second time.

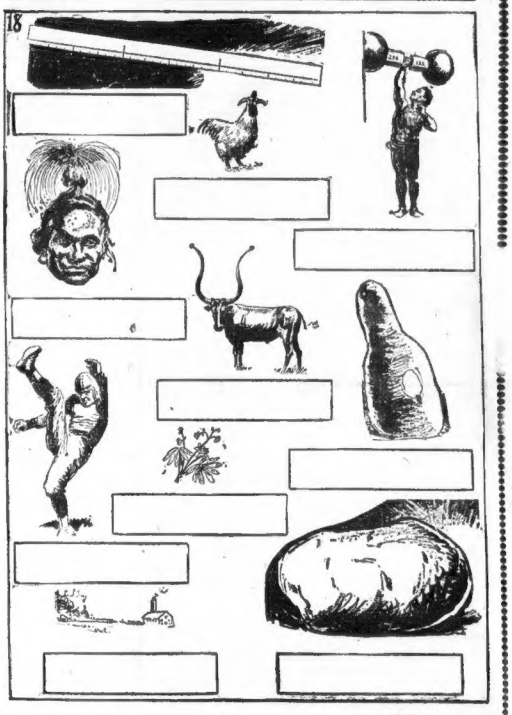
Ripley's WORD HUNT

$2500 In Cash Prizes FREE!

When it's so easy to try for one of these big cash prizes, why not start with today's set and get back numbers of previous pictures? All you have to do is to look in the Classified Ads for descriptions and paste them under the right pictures. You can get June 15 Boston Sunday Advertiser (containing first six sets) and June 22 issue for 10c each, plus 2c postage, and back numbers of the Boston American for 2c each plus 2c postage.

"Believe It Or Not" By Ripley



FOLLOW THESE RULES

1. Everyone is eligible to participate in the "Word Hunt" except employes of the Boston Evening American, Boston Sunday Advertiser, and members of their families.

2. Every day from June 16 to July 18 (July 4 excepted) ten Ripley "Believe It Or Not" pictures (without descriptions) will be published. The description for each picture will be published in the Classified Ad Columns.

3. The "Word Hunt" consists in finding the descriptions in the Classified Ads, clipping them out, and pasting each under the picture to which it refers. The words making up each description will appear in a single unit in one place.

4. Hold all the pictures until you have thirty complete sets of ten each—300 pictures in all. Then send them in to Ripley's "Word Hunt" Editor, Box 183, Boston, Mass.

5. All entries must be postmarked not later than midnight Thursday, July 17. No entries will be returned to sender.

6. Two thousand five hundred dollars in cash prizes, in accordance with the complete prize list published herewith, will be paid to the persons sending in the most nearly correct and neatest complete set of pictures at the close of the "Word Hunt."

7. A committee of judges will be appointed by the Boston Evening American and the Boston Sunday Advertiser to determine the successful contestants. All entrants agree to accept the decisions of these judges as final.

8. It is not necessary to purchase the Boston Evening American and the Boston Sunday Advertiser in compete. This newspaper may be examined at its office or in the public libraries free of charge, and if you wish you may copy or trace the pictures from the Boston Evening American and the Boston Sunday Advertiser and then assemble the sets from the copies you have made.

FIRST CHINESE GETS PILOT'S LICENSE

By GEORGE HAMBLIN

Having passed his examinations, James Chin, Boston's flying Chinese, was awarded his private pilot's license today by Stuart Morgan, department of commerce inspector. Chin is the first of his race to win a license at the Boston Airport.

Starting his flying career two months ago under the tutelage of Alton B. Sherman, pilot for Curtiss-Wright Flying Service, Chin advanced rapidly.

After making his first solo landing, Chin started in quest of the private license. Early this week he completed the required ten hours of solo flying and took the examinations. Morgan stated that Chin passed both the written and flying exams with high marks.

Although having no immediate plans, Chin hopes to build up his flying hours to obtain his transport pilot's license. He will endeavor to make his living in this country flying airplanes.

Guided Cross, but Didn't Recognize It

The Southern Cross did not fly down the coast from Gloucester without a leader, it was revealed today. Returning from Newburyport to Boston to take the afternoon passengers to White River Junction, Earl Crabb and George Watkins, flying the Stinson monoplane, met the famous ocean-flying tri-motor, and a mile to the fore, showed it the way to Boston.

On Landing at Boston Airport, Crabb and Watkins were asked if they were in the ship that was in front of the Cross. They replied, "No, we never saw it." But the two pilots were told that they had the honor of escorting the ocean fliers on their trip to Boston.

"Ain't that somethin'?" asked Crabb.

12 DAYS LEFT IN WORD HUNT

Notables to Sponsor Big Race Meet

Arlington Park Season Due to Be a Most Brilliant One; Opens Next Monday

WITH THE AMBASSADOR to the Court of St. James, the former Vice-President, Charles Gates Dawes, expected as a guest of the Post and Paddock Club during the third annual meet of Arlington Park race track, and with Vice-President Charles H. Curtis' presence assured, the season promises to be a brilliant one. The meet opens June 30 and closes August 2.

SAMUEL INSULL, THE MAN who is putting grand opera on a paying basis for the first time; William Wrigley, Jr., rare sportsman and famed for his philanthropies; Edward N. Hurley and Albert D. Lasker, William and Warren Wright, Charles A. McCullough, Britton I. Budd, Thomas E. Wilson, John D. Hertz, Laurence Armour, Charles S. Pearce, Lawrence F. Stodd, Vincent Bendix, Edward D'Ancona, Dwight P. Green, Otto Lehman, Paul Gardner, John R. Thompson, Jr., and Silas H. Strawn — men whose names are familiar on LaSalle st., the Bourse of Chicago and on Wall Street, are among the directors of the Arlington Park Jockey Club, operating the track.

Leaders Throughout Nation Are Included in Arlington List

NUMBERED IN THE LIST are many names that not only glitter but are backed up by the solid gold of prestige, power and money; for instance, Knowlton L. Ames, Jr., son of the famous "Snake" Ames of Princeton's football triumphs; Mrs. Charles Amory of Baltimore, who was born an Emerson and has been a Vanderbilt and a Baker and is now one of the great Boston Amorys; Marshall Field, 3d, whose racing string is one of the finest in the country as well as in England; Benjamin L. Behr, under whose charter the hounds run at Onwentsia, that country club of Lake Forest founded by Durands and Farwells; Col. E. R. Bradley, of Lexington, Ky., a name known wherever horse-racing are mentioned; John Deere Cady, whose ancestors have signed everything patriotic in this country save possibly the Eighteenth Amendment; W. D. DuPont, a name we all know.

THEN THERE IS MAX EPSTEIN, whose collection of classic and modern art is scarcely surpassed by any similar collection of a private individual; the Newmans, Harold and Gerhard, carrying on in the fields of finance as their ancestors have done for generations; George Getz, sportsman, capitalist and philanthropist; Ralph Hines, who has steeplechased here and in England; Chauncey McCormick, scion of the Baltimore McCormicks; his wife, Marion Deering McCormick, twin sister of Mrs. Richard E. Danielson of Groton; Austin Nichuck, another huntsman who rides across the pond as well as here; Arthur Reynolds, banker, Harold Swift, director of the University of Chicago; his brother, Charles H. Swift, whose wife, known on the operatic stage as Mme. Claire Dux, is one of Chicago's most gracious hostesses; Joseph E. Widener.

MRS. HENRY LYMAN, MRS. CHARLES S. MINOT and Mrs. L. A. Lawrence of Boston are sailing today from New York on the Majestic for Cherbourg and Southampton.

THE EDWIN BOARDMANS of Commonwealth ave. and their daughter and son-in-law, William Potter, of Marlborough st.; the B. Devereux Barkers of West Cedar st. and their daughter and son-in-law, Edward H. Rudd, of Marblehead; Mr. Isaac Edmands, of the racing committee of the Eastern Yacht Club; Miss Fiffine Griffith of Milton, Mrs. Guy Lowell of Brookline and the James M. Hunnewells of Chestnut st. are among those returning home from the Newport races on the Governor Dingley.

'Art Gallery' Feature of Cohasset Garden Club's Annual Show

AT THE COHASSET GARDEN CLUB show, which was held on the estate of Mrs. William Brown, an interesting feature was the "art gallery" of "still life" studies. Around one side of Mrs. Brown's palatial barn were hung gold picture frames, in which were arranged real flowers in beautiful vases to achieve an artistic effect against a background of dark velvet. The illusion was beautiful and most original. Mrs. William Cox (Jessie Bancroft) had a most gorgeous display of orchids, in the center of which was a fountain. The effect was charming.

MRS. ROBERT AMORY OF Brush Hill rd., Milton, will give a radio talk on Saturday from station WEEI at 3:15. Mrs. Amory will speak on the subject of the "Convalescent Home of the Children's Hospital," of which she is secretary. This home, located at Wellesley Hills, cares for over 500 children during the year, 350 being free patients. The officers of the home are Mrs. George H. Monks, president; Miss Mary B. Lothrop, vice-president; Mrs. Robert Amory, secretary; Mrs. Samuel H. Hooper, treasurer, and Mrs. I. Garfield, assistant treasurer.

Caroline Hunnewell

MISS CAROLINE HUNNEWELL, (seated), daughter of the James M. Hunnewells of Chestnut st., was one of the merry party aboard the Gov. Dingley which sailed for Newport and the races this week. She wore this costume on Beacon Hill Day with three sister debutantes of the 1930-31 season, Miss Kitty Talbot, Miss Ruth Blake and Miss Barbara Young.

Clubwomen to Take Part in Big Vergil Celebration in Fall

Clubwomen will participate in the celebration commemorating the 200th anniversary of the birth of Vergil next October 15 by reserving space on the club calendar for a Vergilian program.

The General Federation has stated its co-operating with the American Classical League, which seeks to perpetuate in national life and thought the culture that is bred of the humanities, and in turn will ask member clubs to co-operate, too.

The club celebrations will take the form of lectures, readings, plays, pageants, with suggestions of prizes for essays and poems in Vergil's honor. The Poetry Society of America is to award a prize of $100 for the best poem which is to be read at the celebration in Italy.

Clubs Will Translate Ideals

General Federation President to Outline Plan in Her Fall Message

By NANCY BREWSTER

The translation of religious ideals into club life will again be essed by clubwomen of the country next club year in accordance with the fall message of the president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, Mrs. John F. Sippel.

Though not a religious organization, the guiding spirit of two and half million clubwomen wants the greatest organized body of women in the world to be a "God-fearing host of women."

"We must translate the common spirit of our religions into the common ideals of our organization life," she says, which message will go to every constituent club of the General Federation when activities are resumed in September.

Emphasizing the importance of the appreciation of spiritual values, Mrs. Sippel warns against confusing the great ends sought by club-women with the means used to reach them.

"We need to assess new methods, materials and implements we are using to express our ideals that we may keep them abreast of the best. We need to keep ceaseless guard on our thoughts and hearts lest we fall in the error of denying the spirituality of others because they do not use the same means or methods of expression which we have chosen; of lamenting an imaginary loss of ideality in our times because we do not use the same implements to put it into effect that we used in earlier days.

Are we not inclined to bemoan this day of ours as lacking in the idealism of by-gone years because our methods of achievement are swifter, our implements of expression more complex, our social and industrial mechanism more complicated? The very life and growth of our great organization depend on guarding against this confusion of means with end whether in judging our achievements by those of our forbears or in measuring our own work by that of our fellow clubwomen."

English Folk Dance Society to Sponsor School at Amherst

The English Folk Dance Society with headquarters in England and local residence at 87 Beacon st., will again sponsor their Summer Vacation School of Folk Song and Dance at the Massachusetts Agricultural College at Amherst, August 18 to 30, inclusive.

Supported by the Federation of American branches of the society, the school will consist of classes in morris, sword and country dancing, including a folk song and demonstration period. Evenings will be devoted to lectures, classes in singing, games, country dance parties and entertainment organized by the students.

Mrs. Richard Conant, Louise Chapin, May Gadd and Everett H. Smith are of the summer school committee. This is the fifth summer school held in Amherst. Mrs. James J. Storrow is president of the Boston branch.

Dawes Sails Today for British Post

New York, June 27 (INS)—Charles G. Dawes, ambassador to Great Britain, will return to his post today after a visit in Chicago. He will sail on the Majestic.

Beret and Brim Heads Popular

From Paris Bureau, Boston Evening American

Paris, June 27.

THE WIDE VARIETY of hats current just now amply covers the millinery situation and gives us all a golden opportunity to achieve added beauty and interest through the medium of a becoming line. It has been many seasons since there has been such a latitude in hats, and most of us are genuinely relieved to see the felt skull cap forced into strict retirement, for it was far from becoming except to a few women.

It seems difficult to see how women will deliberately and meekly take just what the millinery moguls offer them, whether or not, it is becoming and beautifying, and so it is to be hoped that we will now insist on being hatted according to our own fancy. In this way we will all be headed for chic and additional charm.

Wide, floppy brims, cartwheels, snug berets, pert little turbans and toques, they are all in the spotlight of the mode. It is just a question of picking one's fancy and picking it right. The petite woman should certainly avoid the big hat and if her model has a wide brim it should be so manipulated that the line of the brim but not the dimensions be emphasized.

And the woman whose complexion is not blemishless or who uses a good deal of make-up, should avoid the hat that exposes her face to the harsh light without a concealing shadow.

The trio of hats sketched for this page are each eloquent examples of the widely divergent styles now obtaining. The beret which is from Agnes, is built entirely of ecru straw lace drawn back off the face and held in at the nape of the neck beneath a large bow of black velvet ribbon. A youthful but not a youthifying model.

The other two hats are from Margot Floury. The semi-sports hat to the left is of brown and white paillasson, a coarse basket-weave straw. The brim of medium width, dips sharply at each side and is shorter across the back. There is a white ribbon band tying at one side.

The hat to the right is for more formal afternoon wear. It is of two-toned panamalaque, the upper side black, the under brim white. At one side of the wide drooping brim, both on top and underneath are soft little clusters of black and white flowers made of feathers.

TWO HATS ARE OFFERED by Margot Flowry. At left we have brown and white paillasson in coarse basket weave. At right, two toned panamalaque, black and white rim. (Sketched in Paris.)

ECRU STRAW LACE drawn back from the face and held in at nape of the neck beneath a large bow of black velvet ribbon. It is a Agnes creation. (Sketched in Paris.)

New Hampshire Man to Head Chase-Chace Family Association

When the Chase-Chace Family Association holds its annual meeting tomorrow morning at 10 at the New England Historic Genealogical Society, 9 Ashburton pl., Samuel Myron Chase of Hopkinton, N. H., will be elected president, Miss M. Josephine King of Cambridge, secretary-treasurer informs.

Maj.-Gen. William A. Pew, Jr., will speak on "The Lady Arabella" and a luncheon will follow the lecture at the City Club.

U. S. Women Charming Paris

Beautiful Gowns Seen at All Affairs; New Move to Popularize Long Skirt

By BARON GEORGE WRANGEL

Paris, June 27—This town is so riddled with social events these days and nights of the Grande Semaine that one would just simply have to be quadruplets to keep all one's engagements.

Even those trying to keep up merely with the larger functions, without taking in the smaller fashionable gatherings, are kept constantly on the run. Race courses, theaters, hotels and restaurants have a continuous round of festivities.

Mr. and Mrs. George de Cuevas (the former Marjorie Strong of New York) entertained a large party of friends in their delightful villa on the outskirts of the capital. In the lovely gardens, the guests were entertained by amateur performers, including the Marquis Imperiale of Florence, Italy, who sang.

Among the guests were Mrs. Cole Porter, in black satin trimmed with black lace; Countess Celani, in a white taffeta Patou gown; Princes Rene Bourbon-Parme, in gold lame, and the Princess Elizabeth and Marie of Greece. As usual, the Grecian royal daughters appeared in the same type of gown, this time choosing champagne-colored chiffon frocks.

PORT OF BOSTON NEWS

By CARL MORRISON

By their deeds ye shall know them

We admittedly are weak on our biblical quotations, but strong on boosting the harbor.

In referring to "deeds" we have in mind one of the officials of the New England Council. That organization is urging New Eng and business men to ship their goods by way of New England ports—and very properly so.

This officer, who lives in a state very close to the port of Boston, has a policy of patronizing New York with his shipments. He gains a few days perhaps, although he could ship just as cheaply by way of Boston and be helping his own section.

We have no "quarrel" with the business man who is obliged by circumstances to send his business or his personal travel by way of New York. What we "view with alarm" is the official who makes banquet speeches urging others to patronize Boston and New England, and then sends his business elsewhere.

The type of port booster that we weel is helping Boston Harbor is typified in our "Who's Who" of today. Incidentally, this man did not solicit the story, as he was not even aware that the tribute was to be paid to him.

TODAY'S WHO'S WHO

The subject of today's "Who's Who in Boston Harbor" is Albert T. Gould, member of the marine law firm of Blodgett, Jones, Burnham and Bingham.

Gould is vice-president of the Propeller Club, a member of the governing board of the Maritime Association, and on the executive committee of the Maritime Law Association of the United States.

This attorney has a national reputation as an admiralty lawyer, and has been counsel on many important cases. He has an exceptionally keen legal mind and is known for his courtroom personality of refraining from "browbeating" a witness. He holds the respect and friendship of the entire harbor.

Albert T. Gould

Among Mr. Gould's hobbies are those of yachting and globe trotting. As president of the New England Grenfell Society he has been to Labrador many times and is an authority on that country. As a globe trotter he has sailed many times, and ALWAYS TRIES TO BUY HIS TICKET THROUGH THE PORT OF BOSTON. He is greatly interested in booming the harbor in all possible ways.

BOSTONIANS AFLOAT

Tonight at midnight in New York will begin the third annual cruise to "the land of the midnight sun," by Jack Boring. He will guide a capacity list of 480 passengers on the White Star liner Calgaric, for a cruise of some 42 days to such points as Iceland, Norway Lapland, Sweden, Denmark, Scotland, England and France.

Many citizens of Massachusetts and Rhode Isl are on this trip, which is the 18th chartered ship cruise by Mr. Boring.

The Bay State list includes:

Miss Lucia Alger, Miss Emma J. Kennedy of Somerville; Mrs. George W. Andrews and Miss Lucetta R. Andrews of Dalton; Miss Abby T. Baker and Mrs. E. P. Baker of Northampton; Miss Helen E. Bicknell and Walter J. Bicknell of Newton Highlands; Miss Marion F. Blake of South Hadley Falls; S. Bond of Wellesley; Miss Marion K. Brown, Miss Grace B. Gannon and Gladys A. Wetherell, all of Marion.

ARE YOU GETTING FOR YOUR 3¢ EXTRA?

HERE'S what Texaco-Ethyl gives you for your three cents extra—all that is famous in gasolines! It's dry! It's high test! It's anti-knock!

The Ethyl compound in Texaco-Ethyl assures a smoother, quicker-running engine even on the hottest day—on the highest hill.

The dryness of the gasoline base—the new and better Texaco—assures complete and uniform diffusion of the anti-knock fluid through the manifold into the cylinders of your engine. That means greater power—quicker than ever before—without a sign of a sputter or a hint of knock!

The high-test rating assures quicker starts, extra power and greater mileage.

NANCY WELFORD SELECTED BY TRIANGLE TO HEAD 'MICKEY' CAST

FILM TO BE STARTED SOON

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Universal Service Motion Picture Editor

Copyright, 1930, Universal Service, Inc.

LOS ANGELES, June 27—A strange feeling comes to me when I write that "Mickey" is to be remade. Memories of that pathetic little figure Mabel Normand, so talented, so lovable and so vivacious, are revived. "Mickey" was one of her greatest successes and was made when she was just at the pinnacle of her fame.

Nancy Welford has been chosen to play the part that Mabel created on the screen. No doubt Miss Welford is a talented young lady too but to those who associate Mabel with "Mickey" it is going to be difficult to accept a substitute.

Triangle, the reviver of all these old time silent successes is the company back of this enterprise.

KEEP YOUR EYE on Maureen O'Sullivan. Unless Janet Gaynor decides to forget her grievances against the Fox Company Maureen will be rolling into her place. Already Fox arrangements are being made to cast her opposite Charles Farrell in "The Prince and the Plumber," the story by Alice Duer Miller. This, unless I am mistaken, was originally intended for little Janet Gaynor but Janet hasn't so much as put foot on the Fox lot since she returned from Honolulu. For a little person she certainly is determined. Maybe she feels all rights are on her side and she does you cannot blame her for battling

THE LAST TIME I saw Roland West he looked like a man who had just had a hideous nightmare. He had finished the dialogue for "Whispers," the New York stage play, and only that day he had received word that there was some hitch in obtaining the screen rights. That would be almost like losing a story that had been carefully written. But now Roland can smile again for the difficulties have been smoothed out and he will start on his picture in two weeks. He is calling it "The Rat Whispers." As we stated many weeks ago Chester Morris will be featured with Una Merkel, Gustav Von Seyffertitz, Ben Bard, Grace Hampton, Spencer Charters, Charles Dow Clark and Maud Eburne, in the supporting roles.

GLORIA SWANSON talked to her Henri over the long distance telephone Wednesday. He is coming to America shortly just as soon as he can arrange matters and Gloria plans to meet him in New York. Her two children, who are at Malibu romping on the beach, will remain in California while Gloria travels East.

• • •

HERE ARE a few little bits gathered hither and yon. Adela and Dick Hyland are entertaining with an all-day beach party Sunday in honor of James and Mary Quirk. A few doors down Malibu Beach Wesley Ruggles is the party. Looks as if the film colony will be well fed on Sunday. Colleen Moore is entertaining with a small dinner party Thursday night at her beautiful home in Bel Air. Lothar Mendes has cast Phillips Jaw which needs medical attention and is therefore, unable to direct "Her Wedding Night," which he will co-direct with Lloyd Corrigan. "Her Wedding Night," we are told was formerly "Honeymoon Hate" and that tells the whole story.

• • •

SNAPSHOTS of Hollywood collected at random: Mae Allison Quirk wearing a cream lace dress with small green bow slippers, being much admired at a recent dinner party. Marie Prevost in pink polo coat and small white hat, arriving at a dinner given by May Sunday with all her screen makeup on. The petite Mrs. Reginald Denny entertaining at luncheon at the Embassy. Ralph Graves on the University lot leading to a rumor that he may associate himself with this company. Mrs. Jack Warner entertaining with a swimming party. Jack pointing out his new golf course which will be one of the best private courses in California. Hope Williams, well known New York actress, visiting friends. Maybe it's a movie, Tob. That's all today. See you tomorrow!

POPS HISTORY RIVALS THAT OF SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA

By MOSES SMITH

There must be many people who, like myself, didn't realize that the now permanent Boston institution—the Pops—has a history almost coincidental with that of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

In 1885, four years after the establishment of the orchestra by Major Henry L. Higginson, it became apparent that in order to attract the desired European musicians something more than the short symphony would have to be offered. That was why the Pops concert came into existence that year, with one Nedenoff, operatic conductor.

Arthur Fiedler

In 1885, four years after the establishment of the orchestra by Major Henry L. Higginson, it became apparent that in order to attract the desired European musicians something more than the short symphony would have to be offered. That was why the Pops concert came into existence that year, with one Nedenoff, operatic conductor. After a few stated many weeks ago Chester Morris will be featured with Una Merkel, Gustav Von Seyffertitz, Ben Bard, Grace Hampton, Spencer Charters, Charles Dow Clark and Maud Eburne, in the supporting roles.

There is no doubt that the element of music, in those days, was of secondary interest. And why not? As late as 1900 one reads on the bill of fare that a lobster salad was obtained for 40 cents. A glass of claret or Rhine wine cost 15 cents. But enough of this, before the reader faints!

At least once a year there was a "Bicycle" night. Bicycles were checked free, and, to add to the gaiety of the nineties, numbers of the program began with successive initials of the word "bicycle." If these amusements seem lame to our sophisticated 1930 generation let us look in on a Harvard night of 40 years ago. The students, somewhat the worse, as the phrase went, for liquor, became obstreperous. And on one occasion the conductor, Timotheo Adamowski, became so enraged at the bedlam that he walked off the stage and refused to come back!

The programs show what progress has taken place in the cultivation of musical taste. Galops and gavottes, waltzes, and marches appear in great plenty. Symphonic music was not entirely neglected, but it was more nearly the exceptional thing than is true today. Then, as now, operatic music was always a favorite.

The request programs of 40 odd years ago surprise us by containing almost nothing of the modern request program. On June 28, 1886, for example, the only numbers that might appear on a current request program were the "Ride of the Valkyrs" and Berlioz' "Rackocky" march. And, more remarkable, there seems to have been no especial demand for the "Blue Danube" waltz. To call the roll of conductors would include such names as John C. Mullaly (who is still living in this city), Kneisel, Adamowski, Gruenberg, Max Zach, Strube, A. Maguarre, Clement Lucas, and more recently, Agide Jacchia and Alfredo Casella.

Finally we have Arthur Fiedler, youthful and ingratiating, as popular as any, very likely, in the long history of Pops, revitalizing an institution that threatened to succumb to decay. More power to his good right arm!

MET FILM IS ONE OF BEST WESTERNS

By HARRIS MORGAN

That notable jazz band, Waring's Pennsylvanians, is presumed to be the feature of the week at the Metropolitan, but surprisingly the new film proves no mean feature in itself. It is entitled "The Border Legion." It is taken from one of Zane Grey's innumerable Western stories, and it stars Richard Dix, Miss Holt, Fay Wray and Eugene Palletta. None of these things sound unusual, and it would be reasonable to suppose that there was merely an average Western picture on the Metropolitan screen.

Surprise on surprise! "The Border Legion" proves anything but that. It takes its place among the very best films of the West, and it is infinitely superior to "The Virginian" and such ambitious and talkative dramas. In "The Border Legion," the dialogue has been mostly cut and curtailed. It smacks of reality. It never lasts too long. It never bores the spectator.

This miracle was performed more by the directors, Otto Brower and Edwin H. Knopf, than by the author or the adaptors. These two gentlemen started their film with an awkward subtitle, but it is the only flaw in the picture, and probably not such a flaw at that. From then on, the drama simply runs along. It gains tension. It holds interest. It swings into suspense and blazes out into red excitement.

And throughout its length, the audience will note an astounding fact. All the characters conduct themselves like real Westerners, outlaws and cowboys and rustlers, instead of strutting and posing in the customary Hollywood manner. They ride like gentlemen from Wyoming or Idaho, they speak with just the right accent, they shoot with exceeding skill. They even demonstrate that unusual accomplishment known as "fanning the trigger" of a Colt.

For romance, there is a realistic and not too sentimental story. For excitement, there are stage coach holdups, first-class gunplay, excellent riding, a few real frontier ballads worked into the effects, and for climax, a raid on a town by a band of fifty outlaws.

This same raid is excellently photographed and flawlessly directed. It is done in absolute silence and almost utter darkness, and both silence and darkness heighten the illusion of suspense. Spectators can even be heard moving uneasily in, their seats as the tension builds and the townsfolk make ready to ambush them.

A good picture? Of course, "The Border Legion" is a good picture. It is, in fact, one of the few good westerns ever made, with all the actors, up to and including Messrs. Holt, Arlen and Palletta, and Miss Wray, help to make it so.

On stage, Waring's Pennsylvanians amply live up to their reputation of being one of the finest jazz bands in the country. The lighting effects are good, the program is excellent, and the Three Girl Friends and Burnett and Clark round out the entertainment.

GOSSIP ALONG NEW YORK'S RIALTO

Herman Gantvoort will be an early comer to Broadway next season. He is about ready to go into rehearsal with "Our Wife," a new play that probably will wander along the sea shore for several weeks before coming to town in the comparative cool of September.

"Our Wife" is the work of two young folks, Lillian Day and Lyon Mearson. Miss Day and Mr. Mearson are in private life, as some jesters refer to it, Mr. and Mrs. Mearson. He has written several books and presently is engaged in belaboring a typewriter in the office of the Messrs. Shubert. She is the autor of "Pagans of Broadway."

The Wharf Players, out in Provincetown, on the tip of Cape Cod, are going to have a busy season this summer.

The Provincetowners, we learn from Neil Kingsley, of the Catholic Actors' Guild, have half a dozen new plays scheduled for production. One is "Really Illegal," by Ioannis Rouveral, who not so long ago wrote "Skidding."

• • •

Then there is Herbert Warren's "The Guardian Angel," Frederick Simonds' "Mrs. Dewing's Divorce," Master Tyman's "The Favorite," and "When It Comes Home," Emely Welman's "If She Were My Wife" and a piece by Mrs. Richardson Ide that Mrs. Ide has not yet got around to naming.

As happened last year, the Wharf Players will import guest stars for this occasion and that.

The Mutual Burlesque wheel will put its 40 shows into rehearsal next Monday, and this establishes some sort of record—chorus girls will not be present. The Mutual intends to recruit its choruses along the road next year, training the home town girls later in the summer.

Vodvil Who's Who

Jack Osterman, "Broadway's Playboy," is back again and is to be seen as the headliner at the Keith-Albee in "Glorifying the American Boy."

He started his stage career at the tender age of six when he sold A. E. Erlanger in first play, a one-act for One Dollar. His father was the late Jake Rosenthal who was responsible for the original production of "The Bat"—his mother Kathryn Osterman, is still remembered as a charming comedienne of the last decade—his cousin last name is Cantor, (made cute, Eddie's the first name) Jack has written a novel, a revue or two and a number of songs.

SPINNING GIRL THRILLS POPS CROWDS

A mild sensation was caused at the Pops concert in Symphony Hall when the audience came upon a woman spinning flax in the lobby upon an old-time spinning wheel. This spinner, who also wore colonial homespun, was demonstrating Massachusetts' first method of spinning flax and wool upon the same wheels which were used in the making of "Three Centuries of Massachusetts," the historical talking picture produced by the University Film Foundation and to have its first release in Symphony Hall on Monday, July 7.

The well spinning wheel, which has a particularly large wheel, was an invention of the Bay Colony settlers.

"Three Centuries of Massachusetts," which will be an enduring record of the Tercentenary celebration, marks the first entrance of a great historian such as Prof. Albert Bushnell Hart into the medium of the talkies.

Great Joy for Tea Time

The national sweet of England is the dainty English biscuit. In this fashionable drawing rooms—the wayside inns—in fact, wherever Englishmen enjoy this delicious confection it is very much in evidence.

Heretofore Americans have been able to obtain these biscuits only on an occasional visit to England or as costly importations, but now English scones and special machines have been set up in America by the famous biscuit corporation, located in Watertown, and are producing these famous delicacies in traditional fashion.

At tea-time—at luncheon with a glass of milk or cooling drinks—whenever a bit of rich short pastry is delicately filled is appropriate, the English quality biscuit comes into its own.

Prominent physicians, eminent health authorities and dieticians are heartily endorsing more and more the value of real whole wheat, and this famous company is now introducing a new whole wheat biscuit made from 100 per cent whole wheat flour, selected eggs, milk, brown sugar and clear amber honey. These delicious biscuits are abundant in the health building elements of whole wheat, and dealers are offering them in smart blue-and-red packages and in bulk.

Lumps Fade

Odors Disappear

Tempt the Most Exacting

Get the Call in Summer

Snippets of toast cut with a 1½ inch cutter and muffins in tomato-tin-size cans make a much stronger summer time appeal than do the same recipe baked in regulation-sized tins. I hope you will try the Date Muffins that I have for you today that are especially wholesome and delicious and make a perfect complement for crisp salads or are equally delicious served with a cool drink and your best glass plate of cheese.

DATE MUFFINS

1 cup unbleached flour
1½ cups whole wheat flour
4 tsps. baking powder
1 tsp. salt
½ cup chopped dates
½ cup coarsley chopped nuts
1½ cups milk
1 egg
1 tbsp. melted butter
1 tbsp. sugar

Sift the dry ingredients, all except the whole wheat flour. Add the whole wheat flour to dates and nuts and beat well. Mix with first lot of ingredients. Then add the unbeaten egg, the melted butter and the milk, and beat to a smooth dough. Bake in well greased tiny muffin tins at 375 F. for about 15 to 20 minutes.

Loosens Dirt

In doing up your curtains, add ¼ cup of salt to the water in which they are being soaked. The dirt will loosen much more readily.

ICE COLD DRINKS FOR HOT DAYS

It matters not whether we see it on an attractive tea room menu or hear it from the barker in the circus tent, "ice cold drinks" seem to have the same fascination for us on the sweltering hot day—possibly it is the inviting sound of the tinkle of the cracked ice against the side of the glass.

In using the fruit juices better results are obtained by combining several fruits. Orange and pineapple combine well, using the finely grated pineapple and straining it before serving. Berry juices, especially currants and loganberries, make satisfying drinks. There are many ways that you may vary a foundation drink recipe.

One of the most refreshing, thirst-quenching drinks that I know of is made by combining ginger ale and grape juice. This is very easily and quickly prepared. I use three parts of pure ginger ale to one part of grape juice and serve it in tall glasses with plenty of shaved ice.

Other zippy ginger ale combinations are

GRENADIER
(Individual Portion)

2 large tbsp. vanilla cream ginger ice
Place the ice cream in a tall glass. Fill with ice cold ginger ale. Garnish top with red cherry. Note. Orange or lemon ice may be substituted for the pineapple.

FRUIT PUNCH
(Two quarts)

1 cup hot tea
1 cup sugar
1 cup orange juice
1 cup lemon juice
1 pint ginger ale
1 pint water
Few slices of orange

Pour tea over sugar, cool and add fruit juices; turn into a large punch bowl over blocks of ice. Just before serving add ginger ale, ice water and orange slices.

FRUIT LEMONADE
(Two Servings)

Juice ½ lemon
Juice 1 orange
1 tbsp. powdered sugar
1 bottle ginger ale

What to Eat on Hot Days

A far more vital question than Hamlet's "to be or not to be" is "what shall we eat tonight?"

One of these days I'm going to have one hot dog roast and the separate frankfurter and be sure of getting the very best sausage. The frankfurters are the specialty made from New England pork and flavored with the delicate spices that we use in the Martha Lee cooking school. Next in importance, of course, I want to be the differ-ence.

Pork Sausage with Mashed Potatoes

Line a buttered baking dish with an inch layer of freshly mashed potatoes into which a beaten egg has been whipped. Arrange cooked sausage in squares over top of it; you use a round dish have them radiating from the center. Sprinkle with salt and dot with butter, and brown lightly in a hot oven. If you like, serve with hot apple sauce or fried apple and a green salad.

Pork Pie

3 lbs. pork butts
6 tart apples
1½ tbsp. sugar
Pepper
Salt

Cut cooked pork into strips as long and as wide as your middle finger. Line a buttered dish with pie crust. Put in a layer of pork. Season. Next a layer of sliced apples sprinkled with sugar. Continue layers until dish is filled, before covering with pastry and brush over with beaten egg. Bake one and one half hours in a moderate oven.

For further hints on preparing hot weather suppers, drop me a line at Martha Lee.

NOT BLEACHED—and what it means

"Dr. Copeland says in his Ceresota radio talks, 'Why should flour, if made from high quality wheat, be tampered with in the least?' In other words, why should flour be bleached when the finest northern spring wheat is selected for the milling as is the case with every sack of Ceresota Flour.

A WOVEN SILK CANOPY owned by Mr. Alb[illegible] of [illegible] 243 Colonial rd., Lowell, was made in China more than 100 years ago, according to antique experts. It was brought to Massachusetts 50 years ago with two others. They are now the property of a Catholic church in California and a family in Spain. Mrs. Clarke's canopy is in a wonderful state of preservation.

Boston Evening American is publishing daily photographs of interesting antiques. Owners of antiques of colonial or early American origin or of historic association are invited to forward photographs and records for publication. If a photograph is not available, the American will send a cameraman to photograph the antique, providing the owner lives in Greater Boston. ARREST IN NATIONAL GUARD BOND THEFT

Garrett in Flight on Magic Carpet

Smithy Goes on Drive of Horror

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

One convoy of wounded after another is the lot of the women's ambulance corps of which Helen Smith is a member. Commandant whom Tosh has christened "Mrs Itch," is a hard task-master. Strenuous work, little sleep and poor food show on the girls. When Smithy's mother writes giving her silly war views, "Smithy," picturing the war-ravaged men, revolts. But letters from her war-nurse sister, Trix, are treats. Deaths are numerous and heart-rending

CHAPTER 15

No. 8. A lucky number. A long way out, but a good, level road, comparatively few potholes and stone heaps.

Crawl, crawl, crawl.

The sitter leans back, motionless. Exhausted or asleep after the long journey. His arm is in splints, his head bandaged, and his left foot swaddled in a clumsy trench slipper. He leans back in the darkness, his face as invisible as though a brick wall were separating us.

The wind cuts like a knife. He must be numbed through for he has no overcoat and his sleeve is ripped up. He has draped the army blanket, cloakwise, over his shoulders, leaving his legs to the mercy of the freezing night. It is snowing again. Big snowflakes that hiss as they catch the radiator.

I tell the sitter he will find a cigarette and matches in the pocket of my coat nearest him. I have placed them there purposely, my bait to make him talk. I want him to talk. He does not reply. I want him to talk. If I can get a sitter to talk it helps to drown the cries from inside. I discovered that some time ago.

Screams Inside

Smithy Will Not Look

I repeat my offer, a trifle louder this time, but he makes no reply. He is done. Too done to smoke even. No luck for me tonight.

Crawl, crawl, crawl

How smoothly she runs, this great lumbering blot. How slowly. To look at her you'd never think it possible to run an ambulance of this size so slowly——

Crawl, crawl, crawl

Did I hear a scream from inside?—I must be my mind on something—what?—I know, my coming-out dance, my first grown-up dance there. My evening frock of sequine and white georgette, high-waisted, down to my toes—did I hear a scream?—I made over a petticoat of satin, satin slippers to match, not tiny, my feet were always largish, so were my hands—was that a scream from inside?—

Such a trouble mother had getting white gloves my size to go above the elbow—was it a scream?—my hair up for the first time—Oh, God, a scream that time—my hair up in little rolls at the back—another scream, the madman has started, the madman has started, I was afraid of him, he'll start them all screaming—thirty-one little rolls like fat little sausages, a professional hair dresser come in and did them, took nearly two hours to do them while Trix and mother watched and Sarah came in to peep.

Is She Lost?

Snow Is Everywhere

Don't let him start the others, don't let him start the others—thirty-one little sausages of hair, piled one on top of the other and all the hair my own too, copied from a picture-postcard of Phyllis Dare or Lily Elsie, now which one was it— Os shell-shocked man has joined in, the madman has set the shell-shocked man howling like a mad dog—Lily Elsie, I think it was—what are they doing to one another in there?

"Let me out, let me out."

The madman is calling that—Lily Elsie, I think it was Lily Elsie——

"Stop screaming, you're not the only one going through bloody hell"

A different voice that one, must be one of the sitters—satin slippers with buckles on the toes little pearl buckles shaped like

THURSDAY, JUNE 26—Unreported at Far Rockaway.

FRIDAY, JUNE 27—Faint signals heard; Garrett believed looking for a soft spot to make a landing

By WIN BROOKS

After learning of the welcome Boston today accords Rear Admiral Byrd, it is difficult to see how Oliver B. Garrett can resist returning to the old home town (if he ever left it).

It will be a week tonight since Garrett hopped off for an unannounced destination, and he is still as elusive as an eel in a barrel of oil.

In celebration of the anniversary there will be grinding and gnashing of teeth (upper against lowers, catch-as-catch-can) at the headquarters of the law. That other sound is a combination of raucous guffaw and East Side cheer emanating from the Garrett contingent. And yet there is hope for the spectators!

EXPECTED BACK

One is assured a third-hand assurance that Garrett will be back in a few days to send in his card to the Massachusetts courts. None other than a gentleman who went Garrett's bail was assured by a representative of Mrs Garrett that she had been assured the hand of speakeasy proprietors, police commissioners and district attorneys would condescend to say good-morning to Judge Dillon.

The audacity of this pronouncement will no doubt leave the law speechless and yet the promise however vague, should lighten the burden of Dist. Atty. Foley's worries and provide some balm for the taxpayers.

Just how much Garrett's default is going to cost John Citizen in the long run is a pertinent question to which, today, there is no answer. The county will seek to make up the deficit in suit for Garrett's $12,000 bail. And that is a good idea.

Without I-told-you-so-ing in the least, your humble scrivener rises to inquire whether any success has been so far attained in the search of public detectives and public policemen for the person of Mr. Garrett. The echo answers

TAXPAYER PAYS

SEIZE 4 MEN AS RUM SHIP IS FIRED

Coast Guards Battle Flames, Then Find $20,000 Cargo of Liquor on Board

A rum-runner with a $20,000 cargo of assorted liquors was set on fire off Nahant following a chase by the coast guard last night, it was revealed today.

Four men were arraigned today before U. S. Commissioner Jenney, charged with possession of 2300 bottles of liquor and with attempting to destroy their boat and the evidence, and were held.

The fire was extinguished by the Coast Guard after flames were discovered when the boat had been captured.

Ralph G. Delisp of Chelsea, Charles Kist of Medford, John Murdock of Portland and Preston Mason of Biddeford, Me.

The launch, a mysterious craft numbered AS718, was sighted nearly two miles off Eastern Point at Nahant, heading in shore. The Coast Guard fired one shot across the bow, and the boat hove to at once.

By the time the guardsmen had reached the boat, flames were shooting out of the hold. The crew of Patrol Boat 251 rushed on board with their extinguishers and finally subdued the fire.

The flames had eaten away considerable of the cloth packing on the liquor, and many of the bottles were rolling on the floor. The hold was badly damaged

Mrs. Orr of Orr's Island Wins Divorce

Mrs Margaret Orr, owner of Orr's Island, Me., made famous in Harriet Beecher Stowe's romance "Pearl of Orr's Island," today divorced Clement W. Orr for cruelty, in Suffolk probate court. Mrs Orr, who is a newspaper syndicate writer, left her husband last December. They were married in 1918.

Barney, 11, Meant Well, but Traffic Just Just Wouldn't Move

Barney Rubin, 11, directed traffic in Lafayette sq., Cambridge, today with the result that no traffic moved for a period of 30 minutes.

Police Chief John J McBride recently presented Barney with a helmet. He has been quite active among members of the department for a long time.

Today, Barney donned his helmet and went to the temporarily deserted traffic post in Lafayette sq. to speed up the cars. Motorists stopped to watch him until a regular officer was sent to straighten out the jam, and Barney returned to headquarters for new instructions from Chief McBride

Tuberculosis Camp to Open on July 1

The Boston Tuberculosis Association today announced a contribution from a member of the executive committee enabling it to open the summer camp at Prendergast Preventorium on July 1 as usual.

Many more applications for the use of children have been received than can be taken care of this year, and hundreds of inquiries have come into the office asking about the summer camp. The same number, 100 children, will be accommodated through July and August.

NEW POST FOR COL. HERBERT

Col John F. J. Herbert of Worcester, gains a new and important post in the prohibition enforcement transfer to the department of justice which goes into effect July 1, it was learned today.

The former Yankee Division veteran who was exonerated of charges made by Senator Wheeler of Montana when he was sent to Helena, will go to Chicago to take charge of enforcement in Illinois, Indiana and Wisconsin

Col. Herbert was originally prohibition administrator at Baltimore.

When he was transferred to Helena, Montana, Senator Wheeler directed a bitter attack at him which was found to be baseless. Col. Herbert's superiors said they had the utmost confidence in him

Do you want to get money for being alert? If so, the Boston American offers the opportunity. Every week $100 in prizes will be given for news tips telephoned in to the News-Tip Editor, at Liberty 4000.

And what is a news tip? It's the information that something of interest to Greater Bostonians has taken place or will take place. Do you know, for instance, that an interesting picture is to be obtained, that an accident has happened, that there is going to be a business merger? That's a news tip.

There will be $25 given weekly for the best, first exclusive news tip received. $15 for the next best, $10 for the next best and $2 prizes for each of the 25 next most valuable tips. Anyone who is alive and alert can win.

DORCHESTER MAN IS HELD FOR SALE TO HUB BROKER

Kutstein Claims He Bought Securities From a New York Bootlegger

Benjamin Kutstein, alias Rose, of Calendar st., Dorchester, with an office in the Metropolitan Building, was arrested today by Inspectors Cornelius J. Rangeard Thomas M Towle, charged with receiving stolen bonds valued at $4500.

The bonds are the property of a trust fund for Troop B Massachusetts National Guard, and were stolen from the vault of Attorney Irving T. Gilman in his office at 6 Beacon st

He told police he purchased the bond on Jan 13 and the others in the week that followed. Last Monday he went to the office to cut the coupons and the bonds were gone.

Clark-Childs Co., brokers of Pine st., then reported receiving bonds had been sold by a man named Benjamin Rose who had an office in the Metropolitan building.

Police say Kutstein, or Rose, who is 30, admitted receiving the bonds, claiming he had purchased them from a New York bootlegger.

AUTO SKIDS AND MISSES 3 GIRLS

Three children seated on the rear seat of Wellington beach narrowly escaped injury when a car driven by James A Santosuosa, former Boston University football player, skidded on the boulevard and jumped the wall beside them

The car overturned in the nine foot drop to the beach Santosuosa, who lives on the Parkway, Atlantic, leaped and suffered only a cut on the forehead when he landed in the sand. The children who escaped were Margaret O'Donnell, eight of Milton rd., Atlantic, and Virginia Hooper, 13 and Elizabeth Hooper, 11 and Sharon rd., Atlantic

Funeral Service Held for C. H. Wetzel

With many of his business associates present, funeral services for Christopher H. Wetzel, late superintendent of the color press room of the Boston Sunday Advertiser and an authority in his field were held today at the Forest Hill crematorium chapel

Rev. Samuel M. Lindsay conducted the services. Relatives were present from New York, Akron, O., and other places

Mr. Wetzel died suddenly at his home, 59 Pleasant st., Brookline, on Tuesday. He is survived by his widow and one son, Norman, 27, who is employed in the advertising department of the Sunday Advertiser

'OLD GUARD' OF G.O.P. FACES FIGHT AT CONVENTION ON DRY ISSUE

PROGRESSIVE WING WANT WET PLANK

Congressman Andrews May Be Opposed for Republican Nomination by Woman

By BERNARD J. DOHERTY

A knock-down and drag-out fight between the "Old Guard" drys and the younger and more aggressive Republicans, who are reaching out for control of the machine, threatens to disrupt the G. O. P. State convention in Symphony Hall on September 27 over the liquor issue.

The bulk of the progressive wing is affiliated with the Republican Club of Massachusetts, the president of which is Senator Henry Parkman, Jr., of Boston. A past president of the organization is former State Senator Eben S. Draper of Hopedale, son of the late Governor Draper, and a candidate for the nomination for United States senator.

FAVOR WET PLANK

Recently, it is known, at an informal meeting of the club executive committee, an overwhelming majority of those present expressed themselves in favor of a wet plank, along the lines of that adopted by the Republican state convention in the State of Washington.

This plank reads:

"The present so-called prohibition laws were enacted for the economic welfare, health, peace and morals of the people. It has become apparent that in spite of tremendous and costly efforts, strict enforcement of these laws is uneconomic and impossible; that the trade in intoxicating liquor still exists and that the disobeyance of these and other laws is not conducive to the best health and morals and peace of our people.

"We believe in the sanctity of law and its strict enforcement and we favor such modification of the present laws on intoxicating liquor as will provide a lawful use of such liquor to the end that the traffic in liquor may be properly controlled and its use regulated by a law that can be universally respected and enforced."

On the other hand, it is understood that the drys will attempt to reinsert in the 1930 platform the plank that was adopted two years ago, which read

"We pledge ourselves to the vigorous enforcement of the provisions of the constitution of the United States, and deny the right of anyone to seek to destroy these provisions by nullification and subterfuge."

An interesting feature of the views of the Republican Club executive committee, is that the organization contains two close advisors of President Hoover, namely, Christian A. Herter and John Richardson, both of Boston. These gentlemen, who took an active part in the last presidential campaign, have strong views on prohibition. Richardson is known as a dry, while Herter is wet, and Mrs. Herter has been identified for some time with the movement against prohibition.

SHATTUCK RETIRES

Rep. Henry L. Shattuck, one of the ablest members of the Legislature, in announcing he will not seek re-election because of the pressure of other duties is strongly supporting the candidacy of Herter as his successor. Shattuck voted for the initiative petition of the Constitutional Liberty League for repeal of the Baby Volstead Act, which was this year defeated in the House, and which will appear on the ballot in November.

Present indications are that the voters of the Sixth Congressional District in Essex County will have the liquor question brought home to them in a much closer sense than on the state-wide repeal basis.

Reports from that section have it that the promised statement from Congressman A. Piatt Andrew, of Gloucester, on prohibition, following the failure of the House judiciary committee to favorably act on the measure to instruct the Wickersham Law Enforcement Commission to make a study of the whole liquor problem, is being awaited with considerable interest by Rep. Martha N. Brookings, of Gloucester.

It is understood that if the indications from Washington are right and Andrew comes out for modification, Mrs. Brookings, an ardent dry, will oppose him in the Republican primary on this issue.

Horoscope of Byrd Shows New Journeys

Commander Richard E. Byrd was disappointed in the result of his expedition to the South Pole. His horoscope shows this clearly.

He may go back to accomplish greater feats of discovery, in the opinion of Mrs. Catherine V. Thompson, noted astrologer of Boston.

Mrs. Thompson's horoscope of Commander Byrd follows:

Commander Byrd's mother tells us that her distinguished son was born at 11 30 a. m. on Oct 25, 1888, at Winchester, Va. This places cardinal and changeable signs on the four angles of h's nativity and Capricorn, a very old sign, is rising.

His ruling planet is therefore Saturn, placed in Leo, his eighth house, ruling death, wills and legacies.

Mars, the warrior's sign, was just coming up on the ascendant and, being exalted in Capricorn, shows he is a natural born hero and conquerer, and, being in good aspect to the sun, greatly strengthens his constitution. As Mars is parallel to Jupiter, the money planet, he can be very lavish in his expenses though economical for himself.

MUST HAVE BEST

Saturn also rules misers and people who are frugal in their style of living, but as Jupiter is parallel to the graceful Venus, Commander Byrd wants everything of the very best.

The sun is in the mystical sign Scorpio, very high in his house of honor, and in splendid aspect to the Moon in Cancer and therefore dignified. This alone promises Byrd success in life, rapid promotion, prosperity, help from powerful persons, honor and esteem from the public.

Herschel, the planet of the new age is in Libra, an air sign, on the cusp of his midheaven and house of business and Herschel rules science, the air, electricity, automobiles and strange happenings.

At present, the Moon, by her secondary motion, is now working her way through Commander Byrd's first house and bringing him new life and plans. In November, 1930, the Moon makes a splendid aspect to Neptune, a secret, mythical, peculiar planet, retrograding in Gemini, his fifth house, ruling his happiness, his children, schools, speculations—and he receives new inspiration for fresh exploits in the air and for journeys.

In December, 1930, the Moon is in good aspect to Mercury, a talking and traveling planet now passing through his house of friends, hopes and wishes and he should be making new plans for new places to visit. At present, also Jupiter, the greater fortune, is entering Cancer, ruling New York, and Commander Byrd's house of partners and the public. The middle of July, 1930, makes a splendid aspect to the sun and he will meet an important man.

The end of the month this sign passes over the Moon and he will increase his estate and feel satisfied. June 24, 27 and 28 will also be important days for him.

Other important days will be Sept. 13 and Sept. 16 for business trips and papers.

MOTHER OF SIX KILLS HERSELF

In the midst of preparations for a birthday party for one of her six children, Mrs. Mary Puccio, 47 swallowed poison at her home, 25 Hillside ave, Roslindale, today, and died shortly afterward.

Dr. John F. Mahoney, summoned by her daughter Angelina, 14, found the woman dead on the floor of her kitchen.

Her husband, who was at work, was notified.

According to police Mrs. Puccio had planned the party for this afternoon, and was preparing dainties for it.

In the midst of her activities and temporary absence of the children, she stepped into the pantry and drank from a bottle of insect exterminator.

When Angelina entered the kitchen a short time later she found her mother on the floor, unconscious and called the doctor.

SIX CITY HEADS IN NEW JOBS

These six city officials, transferred to new positions by Mayor Curley yesterday, were today sworn into office by Assistant City Clerk John B. Hynes: Peter F. Tague, chairman of the election commission; Henry L. Daily, principal assessor; Arthur B. Corbett, transit commissioner; James J. Mulvey, registrar; Ambrose Woods, superintendent of markets, and Daniel H. Rose, Republican member of the election commission.

Boy Gets Broken Arm as Riot Ends Game

A free for all fight, with baseball bats prominent, brought one boy a broken arm and 10 others badly cut faces today at the end of a sand lot ball game on Lyman school field, Paris st., East Boston.

The battle, which almost assumed riot proportions, ended when a detail of police from the East Boston station arrived and the boys fled to escape arrest.

The most seriously injured of the 14 boys was Martin Matticello, 13, of Chelsea st., East Boston. He received a broken arm when he was struck with a bat.

GARRETT OFF ON "FLIGHT"

coon that no expense must be spared to effect Garrett's capture. Now is there one who fails to hope that the county taxpayers, in the end, will not be left holding the financial satchel.

It cost considerable dimes to send private detectives and policemen galloping about the countryside and seashore resorts, not to mention the race tracks. Undoubtedly they are doing and have done their best, but the trail was a little cold when they took it, and it hasn't grown any warmer since.

By a process of elimination employing enough sleuths, it would be possible in time to effect Garrett's capture. For instance, it has been definitely determined he is not riding on the roller coasters at Coney Island, that he is neither riding the ponies nor betting on them at Anuduck, and that the charms of Far Rockaway in this present season have not enticed him.

OTHER SUGGESTIONS

If a similar check were to be made at Atlantic City, Poland Spring and other places, they, too, could be eliminated. Eventually, by such process, Garrett would probably be discovered.

Perhaps, recognizing that probability, Garrett has been convinced that he may as well give himself up, go into court, and speak his piece. He may even come in before July 3, on which date the presentment of jurymen, strictly guarded against contacts with jury baggers, will be dismissed.

Seven thousand pictures of "His Nibbs" have gone forth throughout the East, for framing alongside Clara Bow or for the more serious consideration of those who deal with wearies picked up along the roadsides. And that is a pretty picture.

HOLD 'SKIPPER' IN FRAUD ON BOY CADETS

Court Refuses to Reduce Bail for Bohld of Schooner Ellen Little

While several hundred New England youths mourned the collapse of their plans for a summer voyage on the tramp schooner Ellen Little, Peter O. Bohld, 28, "skipper" of the craft, was arraigned before U. S. Commissioner Jenney in federal court today charged with impersonating a naval officer and intent to defraud.

Bohld, who lives in East Seventh st., South Boston, is the alleged leader of a scheme to mulct funds from the boys. Commissioner Jenney denied his plea for a reduction of bail from $4000 to $1000 and continued the case until Monday.

The boys planned to spend the summer in training on the schooner as members of the United States Junior Naval Cadet Corps, paying for uniforms and $1 a day for food. Bohld is alleged to have organized neighborhood groups to gain membership in his organization and to have told prospects he was an officer in the navy.

The navy yard heard of the scheme and investigation landed Bohld in custody.

WHITE FIGHTS GAS LIGHT COMBINE AS PERIL TO CONSUMERS

CITES CASES EDISON CO. FIGHTS

Legislator Charges Mismanagement and Borrowing of Huge Sums at High Interest

A protest against the proposed merger of the Worcester Gas Light Company with the West Boston and Dedham & Hyde Park companies was filed with the public utilities commission today by Representative Joseph C. White of Boston.

White, member of the legislative committee on power and light, contended the merger would not be to public interest

CITES EDISON COMBINE

These units should be confined as far as is possible to operating in municipalities which they were organized to serve and in adjoining territory not yet served.

"This has been demonstrated by the frequency of rate cases against the Edison Co. of Boston, which, by absorption of other companies, now serves some 40 municipalities.

"Both the Worcester and West Boston companies have admittedly made grave errors in management, reflected in excessive rates.

FOUGHT REGULATION.

"They are seeking to combine under control of the Associated Gas & Electric system, which spent nearly a quarter of a million dollars, taken from the pockets of the consumers, in fighting regulatory powers of the commonwealth in the Cambridge Light case.

"The Worcester company is borrowing large sums from the Associated system at 8 per cent, although able to borrow freely from the banks at 4 per cent. Last year it junked equipment valued at $700,000 at the expense of the consumers."

WILL BATHE AT TIP OF FLAGPOLE

Brockton Celebrity to Make Saturday Ablutions in the Air

Flagpole sitting is probably an art. Whether it ranks as a science will be shown tomorrow when Ralph D'Agostino, Brockton aspirant for titular honors, attempts to perform the traditional Saturday night ablutions

Yes, the decision has been made Ralph will sacrifice comfort to cleanliness and with soap, water and wash-cloth will scrub a two week accumulation of dirt and dust from the D'Agostino epidermis.

PRAISES CLEANLINESS

As he prepared to go into his 16th day in the air at two this afternoon, the local celebrity was eloquent as to the benefit of cleanliness and the need thereof.

"Yes, a prospective champion in any line of effort must be clean. My first two Saturdays up there were not so bad. It rained a bit and I was able to get rid of some of the dirt," he shouted from the folds of the flag which floats at the peak of the pole, and incidentally gives him some protection from the blistering sun.

"This week we haven't had a drop of rain, so I am going to take a bath tomorrow night. It will put me in good shape for the last quarter of my attempt at 'Shipwreck' Kelly's record."

FIGHTING SPIRIT

How the great feat is to be accomplished is more than many people know. But, at any rate, the attempt is going to be made

A few practical individuals have suggested that this is merely an extra attraction to tempt more contributors to the Summer st. arena

Since the city has torn up the street and spread a coating of oil and sand on the detour, traffic has taken a decided turn for the worse. This, with the heat of the last few days, has left D'Agostino high and dry, the coffers empty and the old fighting spirit a bit damp

Oh well, pioneers never did have an easy time

Look at Byrd, and the other heroes who surmounted tremendous obstacles to achieve their goal. Something of that idealism haunts the D'Agostino mind as the sun beats down, the dirt gathers and the audience stays away!

In Old Boston—No. 294

THE OLD SALT HOUSE, built on Long Wharf in 1700, lasted until just before the Civil War when it was torn down to make room for a row of structures still standing which are used for various commercial purposes. Up to the middle of the last century the Old Salt House was the rendezvous for men who were prominent in literature, in the army, in the pulpit, at the bar, on the stage and in medicine. There was a gathering place [illegible] No. 49 where these gentlemen were wont to resort and discuss the topics of the day and refresh themselves. Edwin Forrest and Junius Brutus Booth were among the actors who went there quite often. Opposite these buildings the first bananas brought to Boston for trade were landed. The United Fruit Co. is still on the site. From the Edwin C. Webster collection.

Stockholder Sues to Get Right to Examine Books; Names Timothy W. Murphy

Gross mismanagement of the Bay State Shipping Company by Timothy W. Murphy of Newton, assessor for the city of Boston, was alleged today in a bill of complaint filed in Suffolk Superior Court by one of the largest stockholders of the company.

Walter W McCoubrey of Lexington, holder of 24 of the 100 shares, has petitioned the court for the right to examine the books, which privilege, he states, has been repeatedly refused him.

Others named in the action include Melvin F. Hill of Brookline, real estate operator, who is treasurer; Charles H Hurley, Jr., president, and Gertrude L. Granfield, clerk Murphy is the vice-president John D. Lynch, also a realty dealer, is named as director and stockholder

McCoubrey alleges that as a result of costly and implicated law suits the assets of the corporation are being wasted and lost, with his 24 shares depreciating in value.

RUNYON SAYS

By Damon Runyon

New York, June 27—To show you how things work out in this world, "Curley" Brown built Arlington Park, out Chicago way, to make money, and couldn't squeeze a dime of profit out of it.

A bunch of rich Chicagoans took over the track with no thought of profit and it would be a fatter dollar for them than bootlegging if you dicted.

Instead they stuck as the red ink beyond the overhead back into the plant. It is strictly a non-profit-sharing proposition, perhaps the only one in this country. As a result, if you can beat a couple of races a day at Arlington Park, you have to hire a dray to carry home your dough. The prices paid by the horses there knock your hat off.

But Arlington Park is a remarkable institution. The board of directors includes some of the wealthiest men in the colony on the shores of Lake Michigan. One of them, for example, is John D. Hertz, owner of the great Reigh Count.

Coach "Curley" Brown lost the price of a airship in building Arlington Park, he left a great legacy to the turf. The fierce old master of the sidelines loved the game enough to see it in its heyday, even though he was no longer connected with it.

Arlington Is Greatest Race Course in U. S.

IN MY OPINION ARLINGTON is the greatest race course in America and it is still in its infancy, as old Charles Ebbets used to say of baseball at that.

It has atmosphere, has Arlington Park. Surprising atmosphere in view of the fact that atmosphere is something that is usually produced only by the years. Arlington is a modern layout.

I can think of no better way for passing a July week than in squatting each afternoon in a comfortable chair on the terraced lawn at Arlington, and watching the races and the folks. You see everybody, but is anybody in Chicago there.

I have a number of favorite race courses. I love the picturesque old point at Saratoga, with the swans swimming on the lake in the green infield. I am fond of Laurel. I think Woodbine, in Canada, a little gem. So is the tiny King's Park in Montreal. Pimlico is too antique. Belmont is too big. The

COLLEGIATE TITLE WON BY CORNELL

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 27 (US)—In one of the greatest upsets in crew history, Cornell won the annual varsity intercollegiate regatta here yesterday. Syracuse was second, M. I. T., third, and California, fourth.

The Washington crew, which was expected to win, was never a serious contender and finished in the rear.

Cornell's margin of victory over the four-mile course was four lengths.

Columbia finished fifth, Washington sixth, Pennsylvania seventh and Wisconsin eighth. The Navy boat was swamped near the end of the race and did not finish. The winners' time was 21 minutes and 42 seconds.

While nobody knew who finished in the second division of boats until an hour after the finish, there was no doubt about one thing.

Cornell, rowing along, smooth, relentless beat, won the boat race, and the sons of old man Teneyck finished second.

The powerful Cornellians were favored by the little pink goddess of Luck in that they had a protected inside lane. But take no credit from Jim Wray's varsity they bucked the head wind all the way down the course and won by the sheer power of their blade and leg work.

A lot of water has passed down the Hudson since a coach has done as well, and the name of Cornell again takes on some of the magic of old days, when Charles E. Courtney's crews ruled the river.

The Syracuse freshman eight won the first race of the day over a two-mile course. Cornell was second and Columbia third. This victory for the Orange was a surprise, as the Washington freshmen were prime favorites for the event.

Syracuse, which covered the distance in 11 19 15, came from behind during the last half mile to win by two lengths. The record

U. S. YOUTH WINS AS KING AND QUEEN LOOK ON

Wimbledon, Eng., June 27 (AP)—Gregory Mangin, New Jersey flash, today defeated Great Britain's ranking singles player, Bunny Austin, 9—7, 10—8, 6—0, in a match which lasted nearly two hours.

Young Mangin, in his first singles appearance on a center court, rudely shocked British tennis aspirations. The King and Queen arrived just in time to see the closing phase of the match.

The Newark lad had Austin at a draw, 8 games all, in the second set, the American having won the first, when their majesties reached the scene, affording them a brief moment's breathing spell while the crowds paid homage to the British rulers.

Helen Jacobs, California star, advanced another round in the Wimbledon's women's singles championship defeating Mrs. W. D. List of Great Britain in straight sets, 6—0, 6—1.

In the mixed doubles Elizabeth Ryan and J. Crawford defeated O. G. N. Turnbull and Mrs. J. E. Hill, 6—3, 6—3.

Mrs. J. L. Colgate and Miss C. Tyrrell defeated Cilly Aussem and Miss Hilanne Palfrey in the woman's doubles, 6—8, 6—3, 7—5.

Wilmer Allison of Fort Worth, Tex., defeated G. P. Hughes of England, 6—3, 6—1, 6—2, 6—3.

Henri Cochet, French tennis star, defeated H. K. Lester of Great Britain, 6—3, 4—6, 6—3, 6—1.

Tilden and Timmer Win in Doubles

W. T. Tilden, of America, and H. Timmer of Holland, defeated Landry and Grandguillot, *8—6, 4—3, 6—4, 6—1, 6—4.

Mrs. Helen Wills Moody won her match from Miss M. Canters, Holland star, 6—0, 6—1.

Partridge Rackets

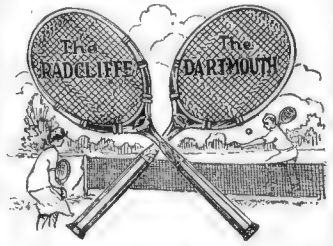
Lowest in Price?

As a result of our sale of tournament rackets over a long period of years, some players seem to think of a "Horace Partridge Racket" as a make that is not available at a low price.

The real truth is that there are rackets in the Partridge line to suit whatever price you want to pay.

If you want a racket of moderate or low price, you do not need to buy a "second" or a racket of unknown make and merit. It may surprise you to see what you can get in a genuine Partridge racket at about any price you may care to name.



Medium Price Rackets

The "Sargent." Full size. Oval head. Reinforced shoulders. Good quality purple stringing	5.00

Red Sox Defeat Chicago in Opener by 9 to 7 Score

LOCALS DRAW NEARER TO 7TH PLACE

By JOE CASHMAN

Fickle Lady Luck, who has frowned on Milt Gaston, Sox box ace, all season, had a change of heart and smiled on him when he faced the Chicago White Sox, and the natives won, 9 to 7, to draw within one game of their seventh-place rivals.

Usually Gaston is letter perfect and loses because his mates can't slither hit or field, or both. In the opening game against the Windy City entry, he was less effective than ever before in a local start only to have the Sox pound a quarter of enemy flingers and present him with a victory.

Joe Cashman

A big fifth inning rally which enabled them to overcome a three-run handicap and take a two-run lead cinched the game for the Wagners.

After that, Gaston settled down and allowed but one single until the ninth, when he was found for two runs which didn't amount to much as the Sox had picked up an extra marker in both the sixth and eighth frames.

Alphonse Thomas, Hal McKain, Young Ed Walsh and "Lefty" Weiland were the victims of the Wagners' attack.

Thomas, who has a bad arm, started. It was evident from the very beginning that he didn't have a thing. He was found for three hits and two runs in the first frame and was yanked in favor of McKain with nobody out and two on in the fifth after allowing a double, a walk and a single.

Red Sox Make Four Runs Off McKain

The natives made three more hits and four more runs off McKain, and Walsh was rushed into the fray.

Each team made 11 hits. Otis Miller led the Sox with the stick, getting two singles and a double in three trips to the platter, before he was relieved by Bill Regan in the sixth. Willie Kamm, enemy captain and third-sacker, had a perfect day at the bat, coming through with a double, two singles, a sacrifice and a base on balls.

The scoring started early. In the second inning, to be exact.

Gaston handed out his first pass to Cissell, first hitter, and Clancy followed with a single. Both scored on Tate's single after being advanced by Kamm's suicide.

The visitors scored again in the fourth, when Kamm, first up, walked, Tate reached on Rhyne's error and Hunnefield singled.

In their half of the frame the natives made two on a single by Miller, a double by Narleski and a single by Rhyne.

The Pale Hose went three runs ahead again in the fifth. Cissell singled, Kamm doubled and Tate singled to turn the trick.

Gaston, himself, opened the glorious fifth with a double against the scoreboard and came home when Todt singled after Oliver had walked. Scarritt greeted McKain with a single to score Oliver and Webb doubled to send Todt home and tie the score. Miller's third straight hit, a single, sent Scarritt and Webb in.

The Wagners' eighth run was the result of a triple by Todt and a long sacrifice by Scarritt in the sixth.

Berry doubled off McKain in the eighth and came home when Jolley made a two-base muff of Oliver's fly.

Whichone Not to Race Gallant Fox

New York, June 27 (AP)—Whichone, Harry Payne Whitney's star three-year-old, will not start in the Dwyer stakes at Aqueduct tomorrow, Trainer Tom Healey said today. The colt has two quarter cracks, which will prevent him from meeting Gallant Fox for the second time this season.

Tris Speaker Quits Newark Club

Newark, N. J., June 27 (AP)—Discouraged over his failure to develop a contender, Tris Speaker, one of baseball's greatest figures, has resigned as manager of the Newark club of the International League.

Speaker's resignation was announced yesterday and Jack Onslow, coach, was immediately made acting manager.

Strong Prelims on Arena A. C. Program

Col. Robert McKirdy, matchmaker of the Arena A. C., has arranged a very strong preliminary card to support the Joe Monte-James Braddock feature contest at Fenway Park next Wednesday night.

The eight-round semi-final will find Bobby Brown of Lowell meeting Jack McCarthy, Eddie Sullivan, Walpole, will clash with Tony Salless, Watertown, and Larry Doyle, Pacific coast, will show against Danny Regan of Gardner. The other six-round contests will find Pat Perkins battling Pat O'Flaherty, both South Boston, and Steve Gorman of South Boston will have it out with Bill Henry of California.

GOOD GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON
Golf's Greatest Teacher

The game of golf consists of the long game and the short game. The long game embraces the tee shots and other wood shots, and the long iron shots. The short game is all that play through the fairgreen and on the putting green. The short game also should be considered as in two parts. The longer shots in the short game would be full pitch shots with the mashie and the 3 and 4 irons. The second half of the short game includes the run-ups to the pin, mashie-niblick pitches to the green, explosions from the traps, as well as other ways of extricating the ball from these hazards and, of course, the putts. So this part of the short game, commonly called the play around the green, must eventually become with you the fine part of any fine skill in golfing, since it is with these shots that accuracy must be obtained to the fullest. Your play here should be governed by certain helpful principles. These I shall seek to impart to you in articles this week.

Employees' A. A. Has Good Card Booked

Good weather on Tuesday evening, July 1, is all that the City Employees' A. A. requires to assure the followers of the amateur mitt wielders one of the best tournaments ever offered around this section. The committee is working hard, and from all indications, Dilboy Field, will house a capacity crowd.

Dick Merrick has already received the entries of Ted Johnson, Quincy; Donald Perry, Newburyport; Ed O'Hara, Roxbury; Sam Salem, Quincy; and Jack Alexander, Milton, in the 175 pound class.

In addition to the above class, there will be open competition in the 112, 135 and heavyweight classes. Also the 120 pound class is reserved for novices.

Entries for this tournament should be forwarded to Dick Merrick, 70 Craigie st., Somerville.

CORNELL CREW WINS COLLEGE CROWN

for the freshman course, 9.11 2-5, was set by Cornell in 1909.

The junior varsity race, rowed over a three mile course, was won by Cornell. Washington was second, Columbia third, Syracuse fourth and Pennsylvania fifth. Navy finished a poor last.

The big Red crew took the lead after the first half mile and was never seriously threatened thereafter. One half mile from home, the Cornell junior-varsity put on a sensation spurt and crossed the finish line four lengths in the lead.

The duel between Washington and Columbia for second place furnished the only real excitement. The Washington huskies had the greater staying power, however, and finished half a length in front of Columbia.

Cornell's time was 16 minutes and 39 seconds. The record for the course is 14 18 1-5 set by the Navy in 1928.

Diamond Pickups

The Sox family has been reduced by two, Joe Cicero, young outfielder, and Frank Mulrooney, rookie pitcher, having been released to the Indianapolis team of the American Association, where they will be able to play more regularly than they could with the Sox.

Both were released outright. Cicero having been farmed out on option twice previously, had to be, but strings could have been attached to Mulrooney. Both players are young and promising and should eventually prove big league fame, and it is surprising that arrangements weren't made to get Mulrooney back.

It is believed that they were let out at this time to make room for a pair of Southern League infielders the Sox are after.

Bobby Reeves, Sox third-sacker who is on the injured list with water on the knee, has something to keep him busy these days. His wife lost a diamond-studded wrist watch, a present from hubby, while playing golf on the Tom Thumb course in the Fens and Bobby is around trying to find the missing time-piece.

Bill Runnefield of Framingham is back at shortstop for the White Sox. The local boy has been reported on his way out of the big show several times, but he is still hanging on, proving that he must have something.

Rey Van Graflan, only rival of Coach Benny Myers for the title of the world's worst catcher, is back umpiring at the Fens with Bill Dineen and Dick Nallin.

Hal Rhyne never much of a hitter, is becoming one of the most dangerous of the Sox at the bat when a bingle means runs.

SEMI-FINALS AT LONGWOOD

Brookline, Mass. June 27 (INS) After scoring the first real upset of the tournament, Miss Kay Park, of Englewood, N. J., a Smith college junior, battles Miss Josephine Chuckshank, of California, seeded No. 3, in the semi-finals round of the girl's second annual intercollegiate tennis tournament at Longwood courts today.

In a hard two-hour struggle, Miss Park ousted Miss Fanny Currie, of Smith, in three sets. Miss Chuckshank easily disposed of Catherine Boyden, of Vassar.

The other semi-final match today was between Miss Marjorie Sachs of Radcliffe, and Dorrance Chase, of Simmons. Miss Sachs had trouble eliminating Miss Virginia Watson, of Milwaukee, Smith sophomore, but Miss Chase, maintaining a firm style, dropped only two games to Kay Weiner, of Philadelphia Smith freshman.

In the doubles matches, which reached the semi-final stage, Miss Chuckshank and Miss Chase oppose Miss Boulton and Miss Evelyn Myer, of Vassar. Miss Sachs and Miss Curtis were teamed against Miss Weiner and Miss Watson.

Merritt and McGregor Win at Salem

'DARK HORSE' ENTRY IS BEATEN

Playing in a heavy rain this morning the favorites ran true o form in the annual Salem Country Club Four-Ball Invitation.

Mel Merritt and Alex McGregor eliminated W. D. Burk and A. H. Johnson, 2 and 1. The Burk-Johnson combination unknown before the start of this tournament, was the most feared team in the field having put out what was believed to be the strongest pair, Clark Hooker of Framingham and A. S. Brown, Jr. of Salem in the first round.

This match was a battle between Merritt and Johnson, but Mel's persistence in helping the former Dartmouth guard at the third and eighth holes going out and then was instrumental in winning the 16th and 17th for the Salem-Tedesco combination. Merritt was 76 on his own ball, while Johnson was out in 39 and, with the exception of the 11th and 14 holes, played beautiful golf.

Eaton and Collins Score Fine Victory

C. E. Eaton and A. E. Collins, a smooth functioning team, came through with a fine victory this morning, when they defeated D. H. Ferris, Salem and J. S. Ingraham, Jr. of South Shore, 3 and 2.

Although the matches in the Annapolis flight were all close, there was only one extra hole contested. M. Bowers of Salem and Robert Hutchings of Kenwood defeating H. C. Oakley, Davis and R. W. Hyde at the 19th hole.

A team which has been given little consideration, but which has been winning regularly, is the one which is composed of Herbert Hicks of Salem and Tom Mosmer of Bass Burn a former Massachusetts amateur champion. Hicks and Mosmer come through with a fine win over D. C. Lee and E. M. Fisher this morning, winning by a 4 and 2 margin.

Although Mosser carried most of the load for his team, Hicks was a handy man at the first and sixth holes. Mosser's best was from the 10th to the 14th, where two par holes and two birdies gave him four consecutive wins and practically settled the match.

W. T. Murphy (8) and E. J. Melanson (5) defeated R. L. Bowker (11) and D. C. Ellis (14), 2 and 1.

E. Eaton (6) and A. E. Collins (2) defeated D. H. Ferris (9) and J. F. Ingraham, Jr. (7), 3 and 2.

F. Bowers (15) and Robert Hutchings (18) defeated H. C. Oakley (11) and R. W. Hyde (6), 1 up in 19 holes.

W. T. Merritt (2) and A. McGregor (4) defeated W. T. Burk (18) and A. H. Gregson (17), 2 and 1.

M. Cody (3) and W. Faversham, Jr. (5) defeated J. S. Hibbard (9) and Ernest Ward (13), 2 and 1.

H. Hicks (11) and J. J. Mosser (10) defeated M. J. Gormley (13) and N. F. Jansen (12), 1 up.

F. M. Winslow (6) and H. S. Langmaid (18) defeated C. C. Handy (11) and A. Merton Clark, 1 up.

H. N. Hicks (11) and Karl Mosser (5) defeated D. C. Lee (7) and E. M. Fisher (11), 4 and 3.

Sonnenberg Defeats McCoy to Retain Mat Title

CHAMP WINS 2 OUT OF 3 FALLS

By JACK CONWAY

Gus Sonnenberg is today still heavyweight wrestling champion of the world as a result of his smashing victory over Bob "Bibber" McCoy in a stirring battle before 12,000 fans at the Boston Garden.

Sonnenberg was obliged to display all of his amazing ability to win two out of three falls. McCoy won the first fall in 53m 33s. The second fall went to Sonny in 15m 41s while the champion captured the third and deciding fall in 6m. 1s.

Jack Conway

All three falls were scored with flying tackles. McCoy proved he is every bit as efficient with this hold as Sonnenberg is.

It was a hard grueling contest. The two former college football heroes cast regular wrestling holds aside and relied on agerressiveness, strength and flying tackles. It is seldom that wrestling fans have been furnished with as much fireworks as they got watching Sonny and McCoy do their stuff.

McCoy was at his best up to the time he counted with the first fall. He was very fast on his feet. This helped in scoring with flying tackles and also in getting out of the way of Sonny when the latter came shooting through the air at him.

Sonnenberg Crashed Through Ropes

On one occasion, Sonny crashed through the ropes and tumbled out of the edge of the ring to the floor when McCoy sidestepped one of his terrific tackles.

McCoy Tired as Match Progressed

McCoy made his big effort in winning the first fall. He then tired and when Sonny opened fire with a series of flying tackles he lost the second fall in 15m. 41s.

When wrestling was resumed the champion butted McCoy and knocked his wind out of him. He pressed his advantage and won the deciding fall with a flying tackle in 6m. 1s.

Yankee Manager Makes Apology

New York, June 27 (AP)—Edward G. Barrow, business manager of the New York Yankees, has apologized for an assault on Bill Slocum, veteran baseball writer of the New York American, and received, by intimation at least, a verbal spanking from his boss, Jacob Ruppert, owner of the club.

Ruppert yesterday expressed "profound regret" over the incident.

Barrow's attack on Slocum was the outgrowth of an article in which Slocum had criticized the secrecy with which Barrow surrounded all news of trades and other items of general interest.

Investigate Riot After Prize Fight

Garfield, N. J., June 27 (INS)—Investigation was considered today by boxing authorities of the riot which followed the decision in last night's young Johnny O'Kelly of Garfield a verdict over Louis, New York lightweight. A free-for-all fight climaxed announcement of the referee's decision and police were called to break up the battle.

Jack Conway Adds 2 More Winners to His List

MOLLER EVEN WITH FINLAY AFTER 18

Oakmont, Pa., June 27 (AP)—Phillips Finlay, Harvard, and Lawrence Moller, Notre Dame were all even after the first 18 holes of their semifinal match in the intercollegiate golf championship at 36 holes today and George Dunlap, Princeton, was 6 up over Winston Fuller, University of Southern California.

Finlay and Moller were never more than a hole apart, turning all square and finishing level at 18 holes.

Dunlap and Fuller fought out an exciting battle to the half way post, but Dunlap, playing the second nine in perfect figures and drew away from the far western.

Finlay and Moller were all square after nine holes.

Moller took the lead at the second to go one up and 4 holes. He held it at the fifth with a birdie three. A par three at the sixth was good enough to give the Notre Dame player the lead again but the Harvard man came back with a par four when Moller was trapped. The eighth and ninth were halved in pars.

The morning card:

Dunlap Six Up on Winston Fuller

Dunlap was six up over Fuller after 18 holes.

The Princeton player showed a brilliant attack on his Californian foe in the second nine holes of the morning round, playing the home stretch in 35 strokes to par. He was only one up at the turn.

'Twixt Tee and Cup

By BILL GRIMES

Regardless of whether Fred Wright defaults or defends his title or the caliber of the field, Clark Hodder is going to give his entrants in the State amateur championship a battle for the crown next month at the Salem Country Club.

For the past few years C. Hodder of Swampscott center, has not played enough competitive golf to keep up the form his game. Last season, however, he joined Bill Burn and has taken the game up seriously, with startling results.

Already he has lead in one and tied one open field. His 71 at Framingham, and 11 75 at Belmont were low, while he finished second from with Roger Ward at 8[illegible] on. There he established a new record at Worcester 71, which is a few less in the 8 parts are capable of duplicating.

Lack of success of the greens was responsible for Hodder's failure to keep in the front ranks of local golf during the past few years. Now he has changed his style, Bobby Burns form was wonderful in every.

During the first round of the Salem four ball, Clark was from his own ball and yesterday afternoon he needed three 4s 5 3 a 72. After a good outward round. Yesterday morning, Hodder stepped through the next seven holes in four under 4 a hitherto unheard of accomplishment at the Witch City course.

There is no finer type of golfer in the game than Clark Hodder and should it come to pass that he wins the Massachusetts amateur championship there will be great rejoicing among his legion of friends.

Charlie Gormley of Norfolk and Sidney Barry of Woodland have furnished one of the biggest surprises of the Salem invitation 18 hole golf tournament which got under way yesterday morning. Gormley, who is a member of the Commonwealth Country club, turned in a card of 81 and Barry, who represents the Essex County Club, was not far behind with a 82. Both of these men have served in the summer golf championship.

Elmer Ward, who matched strokes with Emery Stratton during the Andover open and tied with Clark Hodder at Sharon, has turned in some fine scores at Salem. Teamed with Carl Hibbard Ward is one of the best golfers to win that classic.

Not only did Ken Mason of Belmont and W. P. Hunt of Oakley pass two rounds of 80 yesterday but in the afternoon they were obliged to give one of their opponents a stroke per hole.

HUB HORSEMAN DROPS DEAD

Cleveland, O., June 26 (AP)—A heart attack today took from the ranks of America's race drivers one of its most colorful characters, Alonzo (Lon) McDonald, of Boston.

McDonald, for 45 years one of the outstanding figures of grand circuit racing, suffered a heart attack yesterday a few hours after giving his 1930 racing candidate, Calumet Hanover, a workout at North Randall track where circuit racing opens next week. He died today in a hospital.

Raquel Flips Coins With Bertie Adams; Loses Five Dollars

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Raquel Rojos flees from the squalid home of her Spanish father, Pancho, in the town of Hermosa, Ariz. New York her exotic beauty attracts the attention of Alphonse Courbet, who engages her as a fashion model to go to Paris. She sails on the Glorie de France with a stunning blonde, Greta Touak, as her companion. An incident of the first night at sea shows Raquel that her blonde companion is an inveterate little gold-digger

CHAPTER 27

Alphonse did not come down to luncheon. He sent word he was busy with sketches in his cabin.

"Guess who's on the boat," Greta said when she and Raquel were settled at luncheon. Roses had replaced the carnations in the table's center. Yellow roses with golden hearts that gave out a delicate perfume.

"Yes?" Raquel knew she was expected to show interest.

"Absolutely. At least, he's a woolly sheep, though I guess he's not so very white at that. "He's nobody," old dear, but Bertie Adams."

"Bertie" on Board

Nothing to Raquel

Greta leaned back to enjoy the effect of this verbal bomb.

"Bertie—and—"

"I'm afraid not," Raquel admitted. "You see I'm almost a stranger in New York."

"Even so, the name Adams ought to get a rise out of you. Why it's nation-wide, like Ford or Morgan or Rockefeller. Dopedearie, where have you been all your life, unconscious?"

"I've been more or less cut off from things, sort of what you might say buried." She must not mention Hermosa to Greta. It might not be safe.

"Then it's time you snapped out of it and showed some signs of being among those present," declared Greta. "Bertie Adams is society's bad boy. His folks gave him a gold spoon to cut his teeth on, but he threw it away and bowled for a cocktail shaker. Good egg, though, when he's sober."

"And that is?"

"Not any oftener than he can help. He's a good looker. Meant for a collar ad—but somebody made a mistake and wished him on an adding-machine maker. He's awful, but everybody, and you've knocked him silver. He's got to meet you."

"I don't know. "We'll speak to Monsieur Alphonse."

"What? And crab the party? You don't tell Frenchy everything, do you, just because he's blotto about you? What he don't know won't hurt him."

"Don't pay any attention to me, old dear," she said uneasily. "My bark's a lot worse than my bite. Bertie Adams got to drooling about you, and I told him nothing doing. So he offered to give me a ticket to the Jewler Ball. I'll also do is Faix for anything I wanted to pick out if I'd fix it so he could meet you."

Raquel's anger was gone. It was useless to be angry with a girl like Greta. She was not deliberately mean. Just incorrigible.

"He'd do that, for an introduction to me?" exclaimed Raquel incredulously. "Let you pick what you want?"

"Sure. Up to a certain point, of course. Still up the jeweler off to a limit—you can bet your best silk socks on that. But it'll be a fat limit. Bertie's no dime savings-bank. Why should he be? He's got all the dimes now that Rockefeller missed."

Raquel Will Help

"Good egg," Greta, inverterate little gold-digger that she was, bubbled over with delight at her project. "I'll see that he comes through with a ticket for you, too."

"Please don't. I'd rather not."

"Put it in the other stamp-album, dearie. A girl can't gather too much buy while the sun shines. It's liable to be a long, cold winter. A beaker of that white wine for me. I've got to celebrate."

Luncheon finished, Greta suggested that they go to their chairs on deck. One of the chairs was occupied Greta's by a long, limber young man who unfurled himself lazily and who affected an air of complete ennui with the world, including the two radiantly beautiful young women before him. He was Bertie Adams.

"Lo, Greta. How do you do, Miss Rojos," he drawled to Raquel. His restless gray eyes, weary with looking at pleasure, fastened on her with gratitude, in that she offered him a new bauble. "How about a libation?"

"You poor old, Big Boy. I know you. Champagne."

"I'm not very lucky at games of chance," she said, a trifle timorously.

"What do you mean, you're not lucky?" Greta demanded.

"Well"—Raquel's mind flew back to the adobe hut of Pancho Rojos in Hermosa—"I won a lottery ticket once. My father dropped it somehow and I picked it up. I was just a little tot, but I knew what it was. I thought I'd show it to the children I played with, but when I went to get it out of my pocket it was gone. The number was 5633. It won quite a lot of money. But we couldn't find the ticket, so father couldn't claim the money. He was ready to—to—whip me."

Match Coins

Raquel the Loser

She would not tell these two that Pancho had beaten her until Lucy, her mother, fled from the house, screaming in terror, begging someone to come quick and save her child from the terrible wrath of a madman.

"Let's test your luck, Miss Rojos," suggested Bertie. "Maybe it's changed. We'll match coins."

He dove into his pocket and brought out a handful of change, from which he selected two quarters.

"Let me in it, too," Greta clamored.

They began tossing the coins on the foot-rest of Raquel's steamer chair. She was, as she had predicted, a poor gambler, as far as winning was concerned. But she liked the game. It set her blood racing. A single flip of a silver dollar and it was gone or won or lost. Life was a silver disc. It must be played with dash, with reckless abandon.

"You're minus twenty," Greta sang out to her. "Gosh, if you're that kind of a loser, you ought to be lucky in love."

"I think not," said Raquel, returning her quarter to Bertie Adams. "I'm through. I owe $5. I'll go and get it."

"You'll what!" expostulated Greta.

"Wait," Adams said. "I have a proposition to make you. We'll wait until the races. If you win on the horses, you owe me nothing. If you lose, you owe me double."

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Local fat is troublesome. Often a woman isn't much over weight, yet her upper arms will be too thick, or the calves of her legs larger than the beauty love. The beauty shops have found a new treatment for such cases; it is called diathermy, which is electrical heat. A hot moist application is made and atop that is the electrical pad that keeps things steaming. A strenuous massage, which consists mainly of a brisk whipping of the muscles, follows. What chance has a little fat cell after all that? Poor little fat cells—everybody's fighting them.

Well-developed women should wear a bust supporter. Not only for the sake of a trim figure, but to protect the delicate glands of the breast. Improperly fitted brassiers should be worn by every woman who is more than normally developed.

Our great-grandmothers who expressed horror of rouge used to concoct cheek coloring agents from beet juice. They pressed the beets through a sieve and added alcohol to act as a preservative. And were they tricky about it? They were. In those days the painted lady was a social outcast. Petals from artificial roses made of red cambric were soaked in water and the water used to create artificial blushes.

THIS SUMMER'S fashion-first interpretation of the jacket costume is the combination of one-piece frock and jacket. Less new but still in good standing is the three-piece version with a tuck in blouse

* * *

SPECTATOR sports frocks adopt semi-princess lines but are extremely simple in silks, cottons, linens, and knit materials

* * *

A SIMPLE sleeveless frock of summer silk, white or pastels exemplifies this year's ideal in sports clothes—being partnered with a jacket, matching or contrasting, and a brimmed hat banded in the darkest tone.

* * *

THE COSTUME, which includes a widely pleated skirt, is high fashion for spectator sports and for general wear

* * *

THE SMART and practical three-piece suit pictured is hand-knit in daffodil yellow with a straight skirt, and wrist-length jacket. The blouse is white, knit in a new, sheer, open weave, is sleeveless, and the V neck is edged in yellow. The blouse may be worn tuck-in or over the skirt top

* * *

WOVEN and knitted fabrics have the approval of the season even in the field of cottons. Eatine that has somewhat the appearance of a basket weave promises to be better this year then heretofore. Cotton and royal mixtures present a spongy, loosely woven texture. Cotton tweeds are frequently called into service for the suit, which is continuing its popularity for spring into summer

* * *

GOOD THINGS come in threes in the case of an accessory ensemble, which includes handkerchief, scarf and handbag. Of linen, smartly sprinkled with polka dots, the three pieces make a clever addition to the sports ensemble of white or pastel shade. By the way, this matter of accessory ensembles is a fashionable means for following the vogue for white with accenting color

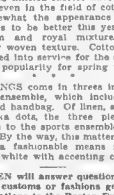
How to Keep Well -:- By Dr. Royal S. Copeland

Outdoor Play Is Factor In Child Life

Play, at its best, is healthful activity, relaxation and fun. Every child should alternate the hours of study and work with periods of recreation and play. It is good for body and spirit.



Dr. Copeland

Play is one of the greatest factors in making a boy grow into a man of strength, action and good health. It develops a girl into a woman of poise, grace and vigor.

The right sort of play gives to a child right control of bodily movements. It helps in co-ordination of mind and body. It aids in developing the breathing and other functions of the body.

Moderate exercises for a child are excellent in his daily plan of activities, but they should be carefully supervised. The only exercisees good for a young child are those taken without undue fatigue. Good, supervised. The only exercisees good thing, but real fatigue is altogether another thing. To learn how to breathe properly, how to relax, how to acquire suppleness and poise of the body, and how to co-ordinate brain and body movements are only a few of the benefits derived from the play and exercise.

A child who takes morning gymnastic exercisees should do so without haste or hurry. His physical stay well within his limits of endurance. Few children do this by themselves. He must be watched and guided. It is only natural for a child to try to excel, to give his greatest strength, to run and jump farther than the others, and make a good showing in competitive games.

Group games have a decided tendency to moral reaction. Group play shows a child who plays or exercises seldom, or one who plays badly. It shows whether his development is below normal.

Adjustments are easy to make at this time. It is here that a tactful leader or group can bring out the best in the character of a child.

It is remarkable what can be done for the child in keeping him out-of-doors in the fresh air and sunshine. Let him play free, unhindered, and the results will be far beyond your expectation.

Most of the children's games have been handed down from antiquity. Spinning the top, skipping rope, playing hoop, playing ball, as shown on the frescoes of the ruins of Pompeii, were all games of long ago.

To have a sound mind in a sound body is the birthright of every child. Let him be natural and unhampered in his play. Insist on his having long hours in the sunshine, as well as plenty of rest and sleep.

To understand and appreciate the great influence of the out-of-doors and sunshine on high spirits and good health, you have only to watch a group of wan-faced waifs from the city who come to play on the seashore or in some vacation spot. The cries of joy and happiness of the children at play in the open is suggestive of future days of well-being and robust health. Child health is of paramount importance and no good thing should be overlooked in the health-building process.

Answers to Health Queries

MRS. N. G. Q.—What do you advise for sciatica?

A.—The treatment depends on the cause. Massage, bandaging, electricity, baking, baths, diet and medication are the best share in successful treatment.

MRS. S. Q.—What is the most common cause of aches and pains? My teeth are very bad. Where could I have my teeth attended to with out paying a great deal of money?

A.—You are probably troubled with rheumatism caused by decaying teeth. You should have them treated by a competent dentist. Go to any one of your large hospitals, where they will suggest a clinic where you may have your teeth repaired for a nominal sum

Problems of the Heart and Home

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Too Old for Him

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX

I am serious about this matter. I am a girl of 37 and never knew what romance was until last summer on my vacation when I met a fellow of 21. He gets romantic sometimes, but acts very cold to me other times. I think I'm too fat! He often calls me "fat mamma." I love him so I'd do anything to gain his love. Shall I reduce? Can't you help me? PEG MURPHY.

Dear Peg: Of course, I understand, that never having had romance in your life the appeal of a 21-year-old boy might seem like the real thing. But believe me it isn't. Vacation loves are very misleading. If you think you're too stout, why not try a reducing diet and a lot of exercise, not so much for his sake as for your own. Sixteen years is too great a difference, and on the wrong side, for any relation to be satisfactory.

"Old Maid" at Twenty

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Several years have wanted to marry me, but I haven't felt that way. Now, when I am already 20, what do I do but fall furiously in love with a darling boy, also 20, who is just beginning business and couldn't marry for three long years. Of course he wants me to wait. Shall I? OLD MAID.

Dear Old Maid—It all depends on whether you are sufficiently in love with him, which I am inclined to doubt. If you were, my dear, I imagine you would prepare to face the three years' engagement without even asking my advice. From my point of view, there is just a wee bit young to marry while 23 is an admirable age for a bride.

Let Him Call You

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am sixteen and I attend high school. My chum had a date with a fellow and he brought his brother along for me. We went out together and had a very nice evening. I have been out with him a couple of times since. I seem to care for him quite a lot and I think he cares for me. He seems to be very nice to me when I am with him. I call him up once in a while and he always asks me out, but he doesn't seem to return the calls. Please advise me what to do? Should I call him again? KAY

Dear Kay: If the young man honestly thinks of you until you call him, it might mean either that he thinks you will get in touch with him when you want to see him, or that not knowing what else to do when you call up, he invites you to go out with him. Why not suggest that he call you sometime?

Shall She Write?

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX

I am very much in love with a young man who doesn't seem to care much for me. I see and talk to him quite often. I found he was going to California. Would it be all right to ask him if he were really going? And would it be all right to ask for his address so that I might write to him once in a while? L. H.

Dear L. H. It would be quite proper for you to ask the young man if the news you hear about him leaving for California is correct. Then you might lead up to the question of writing by asking him if he'd like, occasionally, to get some news of the old home town. But to be real frank with you, my dear, from the tone of your letter, it doesn't sound as if you had very much to go on in the way of hope with this particular young man

Loves a Marine

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am 20, and engaged to a young man with whom I am very much in love. He is a marine. I see him very little, but have trussed him. Now people tell me that no marine is faithful to a girl. Is this true and must I give Dick up?

CONSTANT SWEETHEART.

Dear Constant Sweetheart: Interfering gossip causes many unnecessary heartaches, my dear child. If some definite accusation should be brought against your Dick, that would be a different matter. But a vague charge based only on the ground that he is a marine is meaningless and need have no weight with you or anyone

Miss Fairfax will be pleased to answer queries by readers regarding their problems of the heart. Please write on one side of the paper only.

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

And, Still We Love Them—

There is no such thing as "lost love." A real love cannot be LOST—he can only be temporarily mislaid. Nothing on earth can keep a man away from a woman he honestly loves except death or jail

* * *

About all the average man can see in his wife's new beach ensemble this season is—bankruptcy

This is the season when men, all over the country, are sitting up late nights preparing their Annual Address for going to the Big Juna Convention—and leaving the Little Wife at home.

* * *

A man's idea of the time it takes to get to the office or to get back to the house for dinner may be a little hazy, but when it comes to knowing the exact moment to stop work in order to make the links for a golf date, he has a perfect "time-conscious-ness."

* * *

The average woman never suspects how full of noble sentiments seemingly and brilliant wit her husband is until she has trailed him to a banquet or two and heard him make an after-dinner speech.

As long as a woman can keep that "Twinkle, twinkle, little STAR—How I wonder what you are" attitude toward a man, no other woman's charms can dim the glow of his affections for her. It is only when she lets him know that she really understands him that he begins to feel that he is "misunderstood."

* * *

Alas, the fact that a man has a single-track mind never seems to prevent him from having a double-track heart.

More Sandwich Hints

From Martha Lee's Friday Morning Broadcast over WHDH, the Boston Evening American Station

Picnic or no picnic, sandwiches have a place close to everyone's heart, and their variety adds much to their charm. They may be as dainty as you please for the bridge luncheon or as, or husky and satisfying for the children's picnic or in the lunch box, although too much huskiness detracts from their appeal, which should always be one of neatness and tastiness

Martha Lee

But no matter how we make our sandwiches or for what purpose there are general rules governing their preparation which make for best results. The following hints may prove helpful:

After sandwiches are made, wrap them in wax paper and then in a damp towel to keep them from drying.

For luncheon, serve hot sandwiches either toasted after luncheon and put together, or on toasted bread with hot filling. For after noon service, open sandwiches called sandwiches and sandwiches cut in fancy shapes are appropriate. Salad sandwiches for hot dinners, sandwiches for suppers, dainty for formal affairs and buffet service

Delicious sandwich butter is made by creaming a half cup of butter until soft. Work into it a quarter cup of sweet cream. Season to taste with mustard, salt, horseradish, chopped parsley or finely minced onion, sardine paste, anchovy paste or shrimp, pounded fine.

If fish is used as a sandwich filling, improve the flavor by adding a dash of lemon juice or a sweet chopped pickle. Onion juice helps a lot, too, especially with meat fillings. Chopped parsley will give added flavor with little effort. Here are some of my favorite summer sandwiches:

DEVILED HAM

1 small can deviled ham
3 slice onion
Thin slices cucumber
Mayonnaise
Rye bread

Dip the slices of cucumber and onion in the mayonnaise. Place on one slice of buttered bread. On the other slice spread the deviled ham. Put together and garnish with a bud of pickled cauliflower

SHRIMP AND CUCUMBER

1 cup shrimp, minced
¼ cup diced cucumber
Mustard butter
White bread

Cut the seeds from the cucumber before mincing. Mix with the shrimp and season with mustard and horseradish butter

MOCK CHICKEN

2 cups diced roast pork
½ cup diced celery
2 hard cooked eggs, chopped.
Mayonnaise to moisten

Mix thoroughly and chill. If desired line the salad rolls with lettuce leaf before filling with the salad mixture.

BACON SALAD ROLLS

Shred lettuce and mix with cooked dressing. Line the center of the salad roll with a lettuce leaf, then with shredded lettuce mixed with the dressing; on this place a long strip of dill pickle and on top of this a rasher of crisp bacon.

Faithfully yours,

Martha Lee

"Won't someone send in a good reliable recipe for a rose jar? I've often wanted to make one but as my mother used to, but cannot remember the recipe. D. J."

Mrs. M. J. of Brighton asks for something to kill roaches. I always heard that condensed milk mixed with enough boracic acid powder to form a stiff paste was good if molded into balls and placed on shelves, floors, etc. It must be renewed every month until they disappear. Other people tell me that common salt sprinkled thickly where they roam will rid your house of roaches. Perhaps some one else has some better suggestions?

Mrs. Beeckman Advises

By MRS. BEECKMAN

Etiquette of Calling Cards

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

My husband, who is a business manager, was transferred to a new town recently and a great many people have called on me from the church and elsewhere. I grew up and married in our old town and find I know very little regarding social etiquette.

1—Now I wish to know, when returning these calls, if I find no one at home, do I leave my card only, or my husband's also? Where there is quite a family of young men and women, how many cards should I leave?

2—In the case of someone else answering the door, other than the lady of the house, what is the rule?

3—And should I call again or should I expect a call from these absent ladies?

ROSEMARY

1—When you return these calls and very important ones they are, too—leave one of your own cards for women in the household (but not more than three) and one of your husband's cards for each woman and one for each gentleman (but again not more than three cards). For instance, if the household consists of a wife and husband and two daughters old enough to be considered "out in society" leave three of your cards (one for the wife and one for each of the daughters), and three of your husband's cards (one for the wife, one for the husband and a third one, which would be considered as a bow to the two daughters. The point is that nowadays not more than three of any kind cards are left. And keep in mind, too, that a woman never leaves her card for a man

2—If it is her husband, leave your cards on the entrance-hall table, where you will probably find a tray for them. This can be done unobtrusively, either when you enter or when you leave

3—The cards that you leave, when the hostess is not at home, constitute a call, and your friends will return these calls.

Eating Scallops

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN.

1—When tartar sauce is served on a separate dish, as with scallops or fried clams, how should it be used? Is it removed with a spoon to the plate and are the scallops dipped into it with a fork?

2—Is it proper to eat the whole scallop, or is it cut with a fork?

EVERYDAY READER.

1—Yes, the tartar sauce is taken, a service at a time, from the dish in which it is served, to the plate. With the tip of the fork or the knife, a small amount is put on the scallop.

2—This depends on the size of the scallop, but usually they require cutting.

(Mrs. Beeckman will be glad to answer questions on etiquette submitted by readers.)

EVENING New York Stocks AMERICAN News of Street MARKETS

STOCKS RALLY IN LAST HOUR IN WALL ST.

The market, entering the final period, had become dull as prices sagged. Pivotal leaders had been allowed to close higher on two successive days for the first time this month, but for a while it looked as if the style of finishing might go by the board.

With speculative enthusiasm mild, professional traders felt that a great deal in the way of an advance could not be immediately expected.

LOANS ARE STUDIED

The huge decrease of $371,900,000 in brokers' loans failed to stimulate any considerable short covering. With brokerage loans at their lowest low levels, Wall Street has been interested in bank loans on securities and these loans have tended to increase.

Security loans of New York member banks showed a decrease of about $30,000,000, while loans to brokers were cut $96,000,000, possibly indicating further shift of loans from brokerage accounts directly to the banks.

Since the American Tobacco extra and splitup announcement, stimulating business news has been sparse. Further railway net operating income reports for May were about the only items of interest to stock market circles, and reports by such roads as New York Central and Southern Pacific, showed declines of about 40 per cent from the like period of last year, were not encouraging.

The current slump in the textile industry was emphasized by the Department of Commerce May statistics for wool consumption, showing only about 26,000,000 pounds used, against 32,000,000 in April and 42,000,000 in May 1929

RALLY AT OPENING.

The market settled little in the opening transactions, but quickly weakened. Although commission houses report considerable investment buying, there was a general inclination to reach for stocks on rallies. Many brokers feel that pessimism is being overdone, but can find no good reason as yet for putting stocks higher.

One Stock Exchange house said in advice to its customers that the amount of talking can make a bull market until fundamental conditions are right.

Bears singled out Southern Railway and North American for their especial attention. Southern was sent down more than 7 points to another new low record, further uneasiness over the fact that earnings are running behind dividend requirements, although this appears to have made provisions for this year's payments, at least.

North American was sent down more than 6 points to a new 1930 low under 90.

Shares losing 8 points or more included Allied Chemical, Northern Pacific, Union Pacific, Chesapeake & Ohio, American Can, General Electric, American Telephone, New Haven, Westinghouse, American Tobacco B and Du Pont, down 3 to 6 points or more. Among the more volatile issues, Auburn and Case tumbled more than 10.

The sinking spell which the market suffered most of the day was dissipated near the close when short covering caused rebounds of 1 to 3 points or more. Allied Chemical made up all pf its 7-point decline.

The commodity markets were again inclined to sag.

Underwood Sales Betterment Cheers

New York, June 27—The optimism of President Thomas Underwood Elliott Fisher on industrial improvements has the background of steady gains since March in Underwood Elliott sales and earnings. Additions to the standard typewriter, to which Underwood secured rights by patent exchange with Remington Rand, are filled in the chinks in volume of typewriter sales so that each month since March has surpassed its predecessor. Typewriter volume thus far in June is running above the 1929 period. Company has proved successful in increasing sales of the portable model for home use.

Tobacco Earning Figures are Good

As a result of the $4 extra and increased dividend rate on its new stock after the coming two-for-one split up, American Tobacco Co will earn well in excess of $9 a share, or $29,293,850, a 40 p.c. increase over 1929 disbursements of $21,091,350, and nearly twice the dividend on $15,623,172 paid on common and common B in 1928.

This improved increase in dividend payments in two years is the result of a more than 50 per cent rise in net earnings, which, in the first five months of 1930, showed an increase of more than 50 per cent over the corresponding period of 1929, which itself, was a record year.

In 1930, for the first time, earnings of American Tobacco Co. will exceed the $30,633,314 net after-all charges shown in 1921 the last year before the old company was dissolved by Supreme Court decision.

EDISON SETS HIGH ON MOVE IN BOSTON

After a fairly steady forenoon session prices moved to lower levels in late trading on the Boston Stock Exchange today. Edison was at a new high on the move, up a point. Bigelow Sanford dropped to a new low at 86, down 1½.

New England Telephone eased over a point. Point or more losses were shown by American Telephone, Amoskeag, General Electric, Stone & Webster and Union Twist Drill.

Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway preferred gained 3 points. Economy Stores was 2 points higher. New Haven dropped almost 5. General Capital equalled its low for the year at 40, down a point. Eastern Steamship common and preferred each sold a point lower.

The substantial decrease in brokers' loans was without ill effect on local issues. Volume of trading was light. Investment trusts, which contributed a large part of the daily turnover, were less active and without feature.

Sullivan Machinery was unchanged at 43. The shares touched a new low of 35 on the New York Curb on Thursday. Addition of the stock in recent sessions is surprising in view of the fact that sales of the company in the first half year, due to carryover into the year of a large volume of unfilled orders, were slightly ahead of the same 1929 six months.

Earnings for the period are expected to compare favorably with those of the first half of 1928. The closing quarter of 1929 was poor due to general business slump and it is anticipated now that the fourth quarter this year will be sufficiently better than last year's to offset whatever falling off may possibly be seen in the third quarter.

Plantings in New Brunswick Larger

Fredericton, N. B., June 27—A slightly increased acreage over last year's planting of all staple crops in New Brunswick, with the exception of wheat, is noted in the official crop report issued by the Soils and Crops Division, New Brunswick Department of Agriculture.

Rapid advance of all crops during June is reported and it is said fruitage in the Shiretowns River valley section are growing lustily and will be ready for spraying the first week in July. Another feature of the report is the statement that the creameries and cheese factories in King's county are operating at full capacity.

Advice Is Free

Before you buy or sell stocks or bonds, you ought to secure unbiased expert advice. Send your investment inquiries with stamp to Frank H. Meloon, Financial Editor, Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop Sq., Boston. All replies are made by mail direct.

A GOOD RECORD

L. C., Boston—On your former advice I bought $2000 each of B. W. Straus first mortgage and Suffolk Title & Guarantee 5½s. Now I want to buy a stock. How about Union Pacific?

Ans.—Union Pacific has a fine record of earnings and dividends. Payments have been made on the present stock since 1900; current annual 10 per cent rate from 1915. Earnings have ranged from $12.29 a share in 1921 to $19.80 in 1928. At recent levels the yield is slightly under 5 per cent. Is that sufficient?

STOCK FOR INCOME

Mrs. L. M., Lowell—I am a widow, supporting a young family. I own $7000 Title Guarantee & Trust 5½s, and want to invest $3000. How do you regard them?

Ans.—In $3000 all you have? If so, you should keep a substantial reserve in the savings bank for contingencies. With your splendid background of good bonds you can now buy stock. Get fifteen shares North American Edison preferred. The cost will be less than $1600 and the annual income of $90 is close to 6 per cent. For several years earnings have been far in excess of dividends.

$9000 TO INVEST

A. J. Brookline—I am a salaried man with dependents. Nine thousand dollars represents my savings of many years. I need the income and shall await your advice.

Ans.—Here is a plan: $3000 each S. W. Straus first mortgage 6s and Suffolk Title & Guarantee 5½s; 10 shares each Associated Gas & Electric $6 preferred. Devoe & Reynolds first preferred and 15 Standard Gas & Electric $4 cumulative preferred. The total cost is less than $7100 and you will get a combined annual income of $430. With over $1900 in the savings bank you will have a fair start for an additional surplus.

Big Ice Company Earnings Higher

The larger ice companies are in some corporations whose profits have not been affected by business depression, American Ice Company had its biggest May, its net profits being 15.8 per cent ahead of May last year. City Ice & Fuel showed a gain of 18 per cent over May a year ago. American Ice and its subsidiaries operate in the larger cities along the Atlantic seaboard. City Ice & Fuel and subsidiaries in some 26 states and Canada, but largely in the middle west. June earnings of both companies are also running at high levels, it is understood.

CURB MARKET TRADING IS SLUGGISH

New York, June 27—The Curb market was extremely sluggish today.

After pursuing yesterday's rally for a brief interval after the opening, selling for the decline was resumed in the utilities, and although losses of a couple of points were scored in a few of the more active shares, the dullness failed to bring out much liquidation elsewhere.

The large decrease in Brokers loans prompted further covering at the opening, with resultant gains of a point or more in a few of the oils and utilities. After the first half hour the market turned dull and bears were unable to attract much of a following.

Losses of three points or so developed in American Gas & Electric and Electric Bond & Share.

Cities Service selling was rather aggressive in the latter stock. Associated Gas & Electric "A," Middle West Utilities, Niagara Hudson and United Gas and most of the other active utilities developed considerable resistance to pressure and showed only nominal declines.

Technicoler, with a loss of half a dozen points, featured the specialties as it dropped to around 26 against last year's high of 86½. Glen Alden Coal, which recently dropped sharply under short selling, rallied several points.

American Tobacco "B" new, when issued, was heavy, while Deere and Anglo Chilean Nitrate were inclined to heaviness, Dresser "A" and Fokker were firm.

The oils were dull. Cities Service was in moderate supply at a fractional decline, while Gulf Vacuum yielded about a point. Standard of Indiana and Humble were steady.

Call money renewed on the curb at 2½ per cent.

BOND MARKET AGAIN DULL

New York, June 27—Trading in the bond market was again dull today. Prices held close to the previous closing level in the early featureless trading and the volume of sales continued to decline from the peak reached during the heavy selling the forepart of the week.

A few corporation bonds, particularly sovereign railroad obligations, were accumulated in small volume at slightly higher prices, but few important changes occurred in the early trading.

MONEY AT 2 PER CENT

Call money renewed at 2 per cent and other factors which should influence a robust bond market remained unchanged. The quiet course of prime railroad bonds this week indicates a marked waning of interest by institutions. Investment buying for weeks sustained this group while the rest of the market followed an erratic course.

Accumulation of railroad bonds on which gains were recorded were unusually small. Chesapeake & Ohio general 4½s, New York Central 6s, Chicago & Northwestern 4s, Pennsylvania 4½s and Southern Railway general 6½s showed rising tendencies.

Chicago & Eastern Illinois 5s touched a new low for the year with a two-point drop. Canadian Pacific 5s were active and lower. Many other issues were off under inconsiderable selling.

Utility issues moved narrowly. Such issues as American Telephone 5s, Consolidated Gas 5½s and International Telephone 5s were little changed. The trend among industrials was irregular, with fractional changes.

FOREIGN LIST STEADY

Upturns Are Rule in Wheat Market

Chicago, June 27—Rapid fluctuations both above and below yesterday's closing figures formed the rule early today in wheat, but with upturns predominating. Cable dispatches at hand said millers abroad were purchasing wheat more freely and that other sources of North America were less numerous, operations unchanged to higher. Chicago wheat afterward dropped more than 1c a bushel, but then rallied in some cases upwards of 2c.

Corn and oats followed wheat, with starting unchanged to 1c advance, shade higher, and afterward developing weakness. Provisions held about steady.

U. S. Finishing's Dividend Omitted

New York, June 27—The United States Finishing Co. has omitted quarterly dividend of 50 cents on the common due at this time.

Initial Dividend

Premier Shares, Inc., declared an initial dividend of 12½ cents, payable July 15.

FACTS GIVEN TO SHOW ALL IS NOT GLOOM

By B. C. FORBES

New York, June 27—So many newspaper columns are being devoted these days to things which are unfavorable that it may not be amiss to devote this column to recording a few developments not permeated with the prevailing gloom.

Admittedly, pessimists are having the best of it. Just as the bears, slaughterers of prices, have had the best of it in the stock market—though I have a notion that some day soon those who have been reselling and selling short will suffer a painful shock.

B. C. Forbes

The following items, culled from the news columns of the day by the writer, are presented to show that there are bright spots here and there, despite the prevailing mob psychology to the contrary.

President Thomas I. Parkinson, of the Equitable Life Assurance Society, tells me that life insurance has recorded a gain of 41 per cent so far this year over the boom year of 1929.

Chairman Bertram B. Tate, of the Anchor Post Fence Company, is sending a letter to his stockholders informing them that "over the past five months sales have been running close to those for 1929, the peak year in the company's business. Indeed, the volume of sales during the current management expected in view of current unsettled conditions."

The R. C. A.-Victor Corporation has begun the adding of 7000 employees.

* * *

The Union Trust Company of Cleveland says:

"The most encouraging feature is actually the extended severity of the business depression, for it gives rises to the belief that by this time certainly the down-swing stage of the cycle has been reached."

* * *

General Electric reports an increase of no fewer than 32,000 in the total stockholders since last September. Four years ago the June total was 38,853; last week the June total was 83,383. The list year increasing the split-up of the stock.

* * *

President Philip D. Wagoner of Underwood-Elliott-Fisher reports: "So far April results were relatively better than March, and May was relatively better than April. So far in June domestic standard typewriter business, sales of adding machines and sales of noiseless machines compare favorably with a year ago. After nearly a year of business recession the encouraging indications seem to far outnumber and outweigh the disturbing elements."

* * *

President George W. Hill of the American Tobacco Company announces "a 100 per cent increase in net profits for the first five months of this year" and an extra common stock dividend of $4 a share. He attributes the doubling of profits to "an unusual investment in newspaper advertising."

* * *

The number of visible unemployed has notably decreased in New York city. Park benches and other resorts of the idle, formerly ominously crowded, now are back to normal.

* * *

President W. H. Woodin of the American Car & Foundry Co. reports annual earnings of $5.40 a common share, contrasted with only $1.03 in the previous year, and adds that "a comfortable amount" of orders are now on hand in the railroad equipment department.

* * *

The Iron Trade Review says:

"Steel has made a slightly greater showing in activity this week."

* * *

* * *

Secretary of Commerce Lamont yesterday announced that the number of retail stores employes during April was greater than in the same month last year.

* * *

The Electric Bond & Share Co., that extraordinary creation of that extraordinary utility giant, Sidney Z. Mitchell, admittedly has been having some choice utility stocks in the market during the latest panicky spell.

* * *

Pessimistic statements concerning the state of industry are not substantiated by the semi-annual report of the huge International Nickel Co. Its profits are actually ahead of the corresponding period 12 months ago.

* * *

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN

LARGEST EVENING
CIRCULATION IN NEW ENGLAND

New England and the Merchant Marine

Our Opportunity and Responsibility

They believe it will produce high prices, embarrassing the spending power of the consumers. And they fear it will impede the fine strides which New England has made in expanding its export trade, notably in the past four or five years.

In the same breath they demand a revival of the American merchant marine, which may restore the once maritime glory of New England and enlarge our ports, from Providence to Boston to northern Maine.

Their protest and their demand are not at all inconsistent. New England's exports have increased to a quarter of a billion dollars a year and they must be made to grow if local industries are to thrive, if unemployment is to be abated and if the people as a whole are to share the return to golden times.

Mr. Hoover can employ the flexible provisions of the tariff to allay the foreign protests and possibly to suspend the threatened reprisals the nations of Europe propose to make against our trade.

But the New England business men themselves, more than any other force or agency, can produce the revival of the merchant marine.

They can do it, in the first instance, by entrusting their shipments to American bottoms, rather than by committing them to the tender mercies of foreign lines. We are transporting but twenty-three per cent of our commerce in American vessels. It ill becomes the business man to orate for an American merchant marine at a banquet on Monday night and to route his out-going shipment under a foreign flag on Tuesday morning.

And a concurrent responsibility rests with the bankers of Boston and New England. The savings of the New England people allotted to their stewardship could better be invested in productive enterprises like an American merchant marine than on the turn of a card in the solely speculative market or in the upbuilding of foreign industries which offer only direct competition to American manufacturers and workers.

No cry of patriotism should be necessary to produce this result. The American merchant marine contains all the possibilities of protection to American enterprises that a tariff itself contains. If our marine expired and we were forced to rely exclusively upon foreign carriage of our wares, we would suffer increases of rates and imposed handicaps which a tariff could not possibly overcome. Not patriotism but good business sense requires patronage of such a marine as we have and the progressive development of it.

Should Pick Immigrants

Give Preference to Those Really Needed

To relieve unemployment, Chairman Johnson of the House Committee on Immigration offers a resolution cutting immigration 50 per centum during the fiscal year 1931.

Long before that time a revival of prosperity will probably have relieved unemployment and created a demand for the BEST type of immigrant.

Meantime Congress can encourage employment, promote commerce and industry, and serve the general welfare by adopting a SELECTIVE system of immigration.

Instead of merely excluding the obviously unfit, Canada gives preference to those best qualified to make USEFUL Canadian citizens.

The United States well might emulate the example of Canada.

Under existing law, we exclude the obviously unfit, but we do NOT give preference to the obviously best fitted.

There is ample time before Congress adjourns to adopt a joint resolution authorizing the Secretary of Labor to give preference to those applicants for admission for whom a REAL NEED exists.

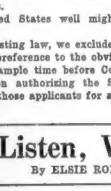
Listen, World!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

Why Won't Youngsters Listen to Their Parents?

AN INDIGNANT parent writes: "Why won't modern young people listen to their elders?"

"When I was young," he laments, "we always sought our fathers and mothers for advise and listened respectfully to anything they had to say. We knew that they were far wiser than we were and that they would always advise us for our best good. But not so nowadays. Respect has vanished from the home. The average high school graduate thinks that he knows more than his own parents, and he treats their opinions with amused condescension, if not open contempt."



Elsie Robinson

Because, my friend, their elders are all too often not worth listening to!

These are not comforting answers to give pestered and peeved parents, but they are true. And Truth is the only antidote for either a pester or a peeve.

What do the average parents, between thirty and forty-five years of age, give their questioning youngsters? They give up to the minute love and service.

But when it comes to instruction, guidance and complonship, they give information, standards and attitudes that are fifteen years out of date. For these parents learned their stuff in a pre-war world.

It was a nice world—comfortable, uncomplicated. Children stayed at home because there was no place to go outside that home. They accepted their parents' opinions unquestioningly because there were no other opinions to accept.

And, generally speaking, parents were fairly well informed because there was very little to be informed about.

But that most convenient world has gone—and the simple pattern of that world has gone with it. No longer is there No Place Like Home, Sweet Home. There are scores of places as sweet as the average home—and much more stimulating to the average offspring.

There are hundreds of people who are better informed and often nicer mannered than the average mother or father. Parents had no competition in 1900. In 1930 they have Nothing but.

Keeping up with Willy is today a full-time job. For Willy is facing Reality. The Reality of 1930 versus the Sentimentality of 1900. He may and probably will make a mess of it. But at any rate he's facing it, and he needs a hand.

Can the average parent give him that hand? What's the average parent facing? The four walls of an office—and a bunch of ideas that smell of moth balls.

Why doesn't the modern youngster listen to Mother and Dad? That's why.

McINTYRE ABROAD

By O. O. McIntyre

ON THE ATLANTIC, June 27—All the songbirds are flying from America to their native lands, consequently the ship's concert—usually a terrific yawn—was musically an event. Such singers as Giovanni Martinelli, Metropolitan tenor, shivered the ship's timbers with booming notes.

There were also Pavel Ludikar, Metropolitan basso, Antonin Kurganoff, of the Philadelphia opera, Pierre Luboshutz, pianist, Jean Bedetti, cellist of the Boston Symphony, Paul Kochanski, violinist, Maria Kurenko, soprano, and Maurice Yvain, composer of "My Man" and "Ta Bouche."

Each responded freely and the suave Henry Sell as master of ceremonies collected $800—a record amount—which will be turned over to the charity fund for seamen's orphans. I have somehow always believed these orphans breakfasted on caviar and played with jeweled toys, judging from the huge sums raised for them.

But I am told the money is judicially and wisely expended. The most poignant lines ever written, I think, were those penned by Pierre Loti in his "Pecheurs d'Islande" as a glowing tribute to the widows and orphans of the brave men who go down to sea in ships. It reads:

"And all the hours of the day passed, one after another, and all the hours of the evening, and all the hours of the night, and all the hours of the morning. As she counted the days when he ought to have been back, a wild terror seized upon her. She did not want anymore to know either the dates or the names of the days."

I am told, too, that the financial plight of the majority of grand opera stars this year is similarly tragic. With few exceptions they were caught in the market crash—innumerable completely wiped out and in debt. And with the popularity of grand opera at a low ebb the future is dark. But they twittered magnificently.

In a few hours the good ship will be warped to the dock at Le Havre and those of us from back home will be "vulgar foreigners." It has been the smoothest crossing ever experienced, and if I don't neglect to pack the lower section of a pair of silk pajamas or something, I am content. And may come again.

* * *

My irrepressible pooch, Billy, has a morning habit at home of leaping to the middle of the floor, stretching and yawning something that sounds like "Yee-o-o-r-ack," rolling over and over and scooting himself along on his back. But the roll of the ship cramps his style. He makes the effort, sits on one haunch mystified and cocks his head quizzically like the dog in the talking machine ad. Sometimes I think he is positively ridiculous.

* * *

"I have read about 40 pages in your novel 'Cimarron' and don't like it at all."

Miss Ferber offered sympathy and walked on. This morning he stopped her again and in a gale of enthusiasm said the book had kept him up all night—proving so enthalling. Miss Ferber, by the way, strikes one as a most unusual New York literary celebrity. She has not only never met Texas Guinan, but has never seen her.

* * *

At lunch today I overheard one of the Palm Beach chatterers who speaks of America as "the states" talking to a very British couple at a near-by table. He was one of those garrulous wheips with an Argentine allck to his hair and a flair for loud talking and boasting. When he left the table, they winked at each other, nor do I blame them. On the other hand the winking couple can have—with love and kisses—the silly ass from perfidious old Albion who sits near us in the lounge every evening smoking a pipe that smells like a last year's paste bucket.

* * *

A non-alcoholic tipple on this boat I never tasted in America is mint tea—an oolong with mint flavor. It is soothing for stomachs likely to be agitated by Mrs. Atlantic's permanent wave. Or rather—I'm in French waters now—undulation permanante.

* * *

I acted as referee, wearing spats and everything, this afternoon at a boxing bout on the second class deck between two sailors—Gunner Bob and Slugger Dupuis. The Gunner knocked the Slugger as stiff as Martinelli's pompadour in 24 seconds. And when Dupuis struggled by he kissed the Gunner on both cheeks. Marvelous manners—the French!

* * *

The ship is slowly nosing into the Havre slip and all the boys and girls on the ship who helped us in crossing are standing at attention in the companionWay—palms up.

H. G. Wells Writes

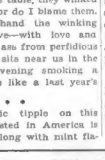
ABBE MENDEL'S discovery and its fall into half-a-century's oblivion is a strange one—how, working through a sequence of years in his monastery garden at Brno, in Silesia, he hit upon vital facts as regards inheritance in peas, and propounded equally vital theories to account for them; how, in 1865, he published his results in the ordinary way, and was surprised at the scant attention paid them; how in attempting to apply his ideas to inheritance in other plants such as hawk-weeds, he met with difficulties which he could not overcome—difficulties which we now know were due to abnormal reproductive behavior in these plants and not to any defect in his thinking; how he died, a perplexed and disappointed man; how, in 1900, three botanists, searching through old scientific periodicals for facts bearing on their own researches, came across his papers, independently and immediately realized their importance; how the enthusiastic discipleship of Professor Bateson led to the world-wide recognition of his work; how it was taken up and tested by a little army of investigators in every civilized country; and how his principles were speedily extended until we now recognize that almost all inheritance, plant, animal, and human, is Mendelian.



H. G. Wells

The intensive study of heredity which owes so much stimulation to the rediscovery of Mendel is usually called Genetics and its devotees are spoken of as Geneticists.

The expansion of knowledge in the field has been so rapid, and the opposition to the new ideas from many biologists who have been concerned with other branches of their science has been so great that the extent of the change wrought by Mendel's work is still perhaps not fully appreciated by the world at large.

It constitutes the most important single step forward taken by biology during the last half-century. It has the same fundamental importance for our understanding of heredity and evolution as had the cell-theory for our understanding of the construction and reproduction of organisms; or the atomic theory for our understanding of matter and its chemical transformation. Today the theory of the atom is undergoing profound revision, but its share in the development of science has been of fundamental importance.

Today we can still criticize our definition of a "cell," and yet all biological work rests on that still developing conception.

A Fewer Medals

Would Make This More of a King

KING CAROL II OF RUMANIA, LONG ON MEDALS, SHORT ON CHIN.

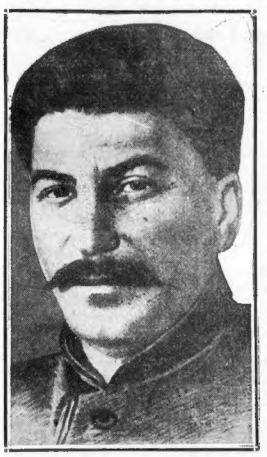
In this picture of King Carol of Rumania there is a whole lecture on human weakness, as shown in the face. Herg the weakness appears in THE CHIN, or rather the absence of the chin.

You know something about this young man. He was born to inherit the Rumanian throne, possessing in his veins and arteries some of the blood of the Prussian Hohenzollerns, some of the blood of Queen Victoria, which he got through his mother, Queen Marie, and some of the blood of the Russian Czars.

With all his blood he did not do anything particularly magnificent. He married "morganatically" and the marriage was dissolved. He then married his present wife and left her and his children to wander off through Europe, advertising himself with somebody else. His wife divorced him.

He renounced the throne, which showed common sense, assuming that his renunciation was based on consciousness of unfitness.

Then he came back to Rumania, took the throne and began attacking his enemies. He will probably regret THAT later.



STALIN, RULER OF RUSSIA. WHAT WILL HE DO TO KING CAROL?

His little son, Michael, who had been put on the throne, with his grandmother, Queen Marie, more or less in charge, has been pushed off the throne by this wandering father, perhaps a good thing for little Michael.

King Carol will find that his collection of "decorations," medals and ribbons of all kinds cannot offset his lack of strength, as shown so plainly in that small chin, about the size of a collarbutton.

It would be a good thing for Rumania, and good for this king himself, if he had fewer medals, MORE CHIN and ENERGY.

This "kingly" profile means, probably, that in due time the Russians will gobble up Rumania. Contrast the chinless Carol of Rumania with the powerful Stalin, shown here, who rules Russia, and you will see how character shows in the face and what the powerful Russian character will in all probability do to this little royalty.
